School Finance Law Upset in California; Spur to Reform Seen

By GENE L MAEROFF

The California Supreme Court ruled vesterday that the system of relying on ocal property wealth to finance public schools was unconstitutional, providing the biggest boost so far to the movement to change the method by which most nf the nation's public schools are supported. Almost all other states depend on such system, and the California ruling is likely to intensify pressure for reform elsewhere,

By its 4-to-3 ruling the State Supreme Court made California the second state in which the traditional method of school financing has been found illegal ... New Jersey's highest court reached a similar verdict in 1975.

Issue First Considered in 1971

But the case in California, which was filed in behalf of John Serrano in 1968, was the one that originally gave impetus to the school fipance reform movement. It first reached the State Supreme Court in 1971, when the panel overruled a lower state court that had refused to coosider the case and ordered it to trial. Yesterday's action marked the culmination of the legal maneuvering surrounding the Serrann case, which was finally tried in the lower court and made its way back to the State Supreme Court. Vienna Apartment Lease Canceled

The landlord in Vienna canceled the lease in September, just as she succeeded in arranging e aloging audition in Munich. Without an apartment in Vienna, her American contacts—perhaps unsettled by the trouble she bad heen giving them on the apartments—announced they would terminate the relationship. Miss Schneider never went to the audi-

Although the A.C.L.U. had not institut ed a court proceeding on behalf of Miss Schneider, it did suggest informally to the C.I.A. in 1975 that $15,000 was the minimum to which sha was fairly enti-

ROMAN SANCTUARY, the discovery of which was announced by archeologists in Rome Tuesday, may date back 27 centuries to the founding of the city. The excavation, above, is near the site of the ancient town of Gabil, about 12 miles outside Rome. Only 3,000 square feet of the area hava been unearthed and experts suspect that they have not yet reached the central sacred area. Nevertheless, they have found some 1,000. bronze plates carved with male and female figures and 50 highly stylized bronze statuettes, such as those pictured at left, none of them taller than four inches. The excavation has been suspended until the spring, while these objects are being examined.

long-range missiles. The editor, Ron Pretty, says in the reference book, released today, that three Soviet missile types, the SS-NX-13, 17 and 18, could be the equivalent of the Tomahawk and might reduce the deter-rent value of the American weapon.

The Tomahawk is one of the most advanced missiles being developed for the American arsenal. It is capable of being launched from land, sea or air and of finding its target with pinpoint accuracy by scannin; the earth's terrain features.

Mr. Pretty says one American nuclear submarine can carry 20 or more Tomahawks, which can be equipped with con-ventional or nuclear warheads. They can be launched from submerged submarines and travel at low levela more than 2,000 miles to the target. Mr. Pretty says. The Kazakhstan and, on its second orbit, ap-United States Navy plans a fleet of 90 parently attempted to intercept Cosmos unclear attack submarines.

Mr. Pretty says the Tomahawk may become an issue in the Soviet-American talks on the limitation of strategic arms when the present five-year freeze on of pensive missiles expires next October. If the Russians have their own version in the works, a whole new set of questions Anal may arise, he adds.

Laser Weapon Development Described

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 (AP)—The Russians have staged their fourth test of a satellite interceptor this year but It tentatively is being classified as a fai-ure hy United States intelligence sources. The Russians resumed flight-testing of antisatellite devices early this year after a lapse of about five years and the Ameri-can sources said the latest test was con-ducted Monday. The targets have been ducted Monday. The targets have been Soviet satellites and no effort has been made to interfere with American vehicles, the intelligence sources said. Officials who watch the Soviet antisatellite development program have denied that the Russians used laser beams or other devices against American satellites. In Monday's test, the Cosmos 886 satellite was launched from Leninsk in Soviet 9. The hunter satellite never came closer

Ten Harvard undergraduates, cooperating in a test of "psychic" powers to tell the future, did slightly better than 10 nationally prominent "psychics" whose predictions were published in The Nation-

The difference was not statistically sig-nificant, however, and a researcher, whose report appears in the first issue of a new journal dedicated to investigat-ing claims of paranormal phenomena, concluded that there was no difference between the predicting ability of profes-sional "psychics" and persons who do not claim such powers. Both sets of predictions were made at the beginning of 1973 and were reviewed for accuracy by an independent panel at the end of the year. Statement by Gov. Carey CII Inquiries Into Attica Uprising

Following is the text of a statement by Gov. Carey on the investigations into the uprising at Attica in 1971:

.The Governor of the State of New The Governor of the State of New York has the constitutional responsibil-ity to "take care that the laws are farithfully executed." That responsibility places a constitutional imperative upon the Governor to insure equal justice for all citizens of the state. No government can command the confidence and recan command the confidence and re-spect of its people without a firm com-mitment to the principle and practice of evenhanded justice. The facts and circumstances recount-ed in the reports of Special Deputy Aftorneys General Meyer and Scotti make it irrefutably clear that the state, through its highest officials, failed abysmally in upholding this principle in the handling of Attica investigation and prosecution in the first half of this decade. Due to insensitivity to their and prosecution in the first half of this decade. Due to insensitivity to their constitutional responsibilities, equal justice by way of further prosecutions is no longer possible. Two independent investigators that I caused to be appointed have docu-mented the one-sided nature of the prosecutions. The failure to take early and widelet action to insure a vigenous.

prosecutions.] The failure to take early and vigilant action to insure a vigorous, thorough and impartial investigation and prosecution of all crimes commit-ted during the tragie five days in Sep-temher renders futile any further at-tempts to secure even a semblance of equal justice now through further pros-ecution. These independent investigaecution. These independent investiga-tions and another have documented: The failure to properly plan the assault and to properly instruct the men (Meyer Report p. 8; McKay pp. 341-366). The failure to properly plan for the

The failure to properly plan for the preservation of evidence and to prop-erly collect it once the retaking had ended (Meyer Report p. 8, 51; Scotti's statement to the court 2/26/76 p. 6-7). The failure to properly badget and administer the investigation (Meyer Report p. 9, 75-77). The failure to perceive these defi-ciencies at the outset of the investiga-tion and to take whatever action could have been taken to develop evidence pertaining to possible crimes by law-pertaining to possible crimes by law-enforcement personnel (Meyer Report p. 48, 54, 119-20; Scotti's statement in the court 2/26/76 p. 6).

'Abundantly Clear'

The two independent investigations have made it ahundantly clear to me that these repeated failures have effec-tively precluded the possibility now of bringing to justice, by trial or disciplinary action, any armed personnel who were misdirected or abused their authority in the retaking of the facility and rehousing of the inmates.

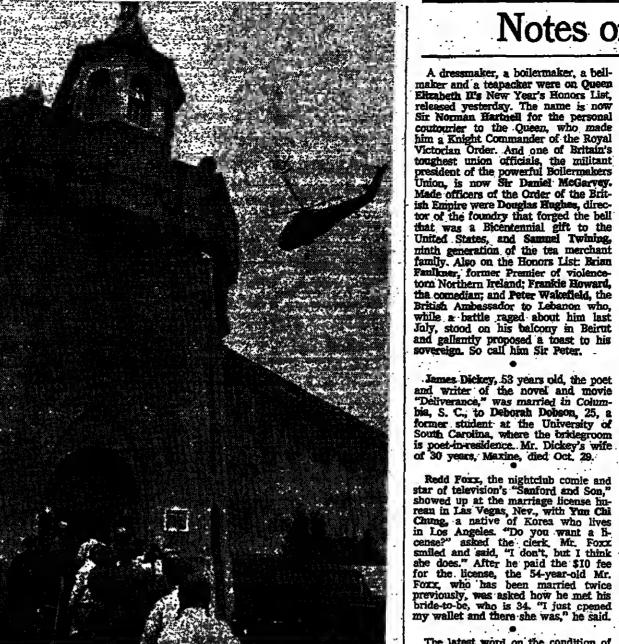

During the months since I received these reports. I have personally read, reviewed and analyzed all of the ma-terials with respect to the Attica up-rising, retaking, investigations and prosecutions. In so doing, I have come to the most distressing, indeed the most disappointing moment in my tenure as Governor of this state. For I now must conclude that the conduct of this investigation and prosecution or this investigation and prosecution has been such that we now confront the real possibility that the law itself may well fail into disrespect. Hence, I have concluded that, as Governor, I have the final responsibility to bring this tragic affeir to a conclusion which, however unsatisfactory, will foster re-spect for our system of justice as one capable of recognizing and correcting its WTONES.

In addition, beyond what I see as my constitutional responsibilities, as an elected leader of our state, I am an elected leader of our state. I am moved to recognize that Attica has been a tragedy of immessurable pro-portions, unalterably affecting count-less lives. Too many families have grieved, too many have suffered depri-vations, too many have lived their lives in uncertainty waiting for the long nightmare to end. For over five years and with hundreds of thousands of dollars and countless man-hours we and with hundreds of thousands of dollars and countless man-hours we have followed the path of investigation and accusation. We have succeeded in dividing and polarizing the people of the state without satisfying the quest for justice in this tragedy. To continue in this course, I believe, would be merely to prolong the agony with no better hope of a just and abiding con-clusion.

A Time to 'Close the Book'

A Time to 'Close the Book' Attica lurks as a dark shadow over our system of justice. The time has come to firmly and finally close the book on this unhappy chapter of our history as a just and humane state I am therefore accepting the recom-mendations of Superintendent Connelie and Commissioner Ward that no disci-plinary action be commenced against the 20 state officers and employees identified hy Mr. Scotti, I also accept the recommendation of Mr. Scotti that the recommendation of Mr. Scotti that six inmates convicted of crimes committed at Attica be granted a pardon for these convictions. In addition, I am extending clemency to the two other inmates convicted of Attica-related crimes-one will be pardoned, and the Attica related sentence of the other will be commuted, making him eligible for parole. These actions should not be construed as a reflection of a lack of cul-pability for the conduct at issue. Rather, these actions are in recognition that there does exist a larger wrong which transcends the wrongful acts of inditranscends the wrongtu acus of mou-viduals caught in the seamless web into which the tragedy of Attica has spun itself. Tatami smells sweet, like the country in the city," Etsuko Suzuki added. She studies advertising in Tokyo, but comes from the rice fields and pear orchards of the north.

"Also," she said, "They are soft to walk on, and they are what you Americans call the great leveler." A student might live only in a three-mat room, a rich man has a house with 100 mats. But it is tatami, all the erms? same."

True enough, according to the younger Hanawa. "Tatami is mostly the same." he said. "But hand-sewn mats are firmer than machine-made, a firm mat better than a soft one."

better than a soft one." He charges $27 to $30 for a new mat, $14 to replace the top, and $8 to simply turn the top. "I will work on maybe 300 mats this month," he added, "but last year it was more. The price has gone up so high, many people come to us every two years instead of annually." In recent years, prices have in-creased about 25 percent, mirroring Japan's inflation.

Japan's inflation.

"I have my mats replaced when they are torn," said Kiyoko Hasagawa, who works for an American oil company here. "Winter is a good time to have it done, hut I'm not bound by tradition.

I'd never have them changed in the summer rainy season, though." That's when the tatami bugs appear. "Yes, bugs live in them," Betsy Ta-guchi 'said. An 'American, she lives with her Israea huchand two small with her Japanese husband, two small daughters, and tatami, in northeastern Tokyo. "Still, we sleep on these mats, she said, "and I've never yet had a bug crawl in to snuggle with me."

Tatami Bugs a Problem

The United States Government takes these bugs more seriously. Americans who want to take home tatami for a little tonch of Japan run headlong into tha Agriculture Department's circular 055-

"All mats must be drop-shipped to a port on the West Coast which has fa-cilities for fumigating the mats," Q55-1

But fumigation makes the mats weak and less buoyant. So, since only the inner straw mattress must be debugged, enterprising Japanese tatami men have developed a mat covered with the traditional igusa but filled with Styro-foam. These can be taken to the United States with the same ease one brings in Nikon camera.

Tatami are not the easiest items to find in the United States. In some cities, Japanese consuls general can probably help. In San Francisco, for example, the Japan Trading Company sells them for $69.50. Or, tatami lovers can get them at the Miyako Hotel there, which offers a few rooms fragrant with tami. [In the New York metropolitan area the mats are available at, among other places, Takashimaya Inc., 509 Fifth Avenue and CST Research Inc., 21-10 31st Avenue, Long Island City, Queens.]

Konosukai Hanawa sprays water on an igusa mat to make it more pliable before sewing it to a straw mattress as he and his son, Takeshi, work in their tatami shop in Tokyo. - mats ripped out when her children were small. "They wouldn't remember to re-move their slippers," she added. But, now that her children are grown and gone she lives much of the time in a small tatami-matted cottage in Oiso, a coastal village south of Tokyo. Tradition here dies hard, and ta-tami's dates back at least 1,000 years.

Ancient storytellers told of the princess who when she visited a country home, was so delighted with the fresh smell of straw-covered floors there that she insisted on one for her palace bedroom.

That was before the 11th century when tatami areas were for skeeping or seats for honored guests. Two centuries later, entire rooms glowed with the warmth and simple elegance of these tan-colored mats. More recently, an American woman, confronted with a house full of 37 mata and a waiting van fuil of Western furniture, decided to break with tradi-

"The movers were abashed, hut they plunked it all down where I asked them to," she said. "Furniture is hard on tatami, but we try to be careful."

Tatami's main drawback is that it is highly flammable. Japanese history tells of fire repeatedly destroying national treasures and entire cities. To-kyo's great earthquake in 1923 was destructive largely because of the resulting fires. The quake hit at noon, just as thou-sands of housewives knelt on their tatami, preparing lunch over charcoal fires. The glowing coals spilled onto the mats, igniting them. More than 100,000 people were killed and most, of the city was destroyed.

That 'New Life' After Divorce— How Do the Youngsters Fit In?

By RICHARD FLASTE

"My husband and I will be legally separated in two weeks," the middle-aged woman exultantly told a visitor as her 10-year-old son listened. "Oh, it's something I've wanted for so long." From the tone of her voice, you'd never guess a family was wrecked, that a father would be moving away from his son and that the mother would be running the house alone, with some hardship for everybody involved a vir-tual certainty.

No, her tone was more like what used to be reserved for announcing weddings.

Mrs. Wallerstein found that children. although they often saw their relation-ship with their fathers as warmer after the divorce than before, "were very dis-tressed and didn't agree with any grown-ups who said the divorce was

"I don't want to say don't divorce," Mrs. Wallerstein said, "but I think the children might even prefer having an unhappy family" to having a divorce.

Their apprehension may prove more realistic than their parents' optimism. Dr. Hetherington found that life was

Medical Center and Judy Grief, a social worker, have been looking into the relationships of divorced fathers and their children.

It's not uncommon, Dr. Roman said, for the father who is relegated to a situation where he can only see his child once or twice a week to "feel devalued." His depression makes it difficult for him to talk when he sees the child and may even be so painful that he begins to shorten the visits and make them less frequent.

The child, Dr. Roman said, may see . this as further evidence of abandon-ment and loss of love-when that said that it might be helpful for a father the to openly discuss the difficulties of a custody arrangement with his children, Some children do much worse than - --others after a divorce. You can tell a child who is doing poorly and who might benefit from professional coun-seling, according to mental health pro-fessionals, if the youngster is skeepless and cannot concentrate, and if there's much more whining and dependency than before, or more hostility. Children in school who are suffering greatly from a divorce might find the quality of their schoolwork suffering and their friendships strained. Young children do better than others, it is said, if they see both parents fre-quently, despite the divorce, and if their relationship with their parents is relatively harmonious. Teen-agers need to be able to see both parents, too. But Dr. Arlene Richauthor of a book on helping adolescents. cope with divorce ("How to Get It To-gether When Your Parents Are Coming Apart"), said that it was important ") selves from the fight. If they don't, she said, the parental', dispute robs them of the energy they need to develop their own lives. And Dr. Richards said that teen-agers sometimes do benefit from a divorce. In her experience with troubled adolescents, she has found that after a terribly hostile marriage finally dissolves, the teen-ager's feeling may be one of

It's a tone that's almost fitting, when you consider that the number of di-vorces now totals about half the num-ber of mariages. Divorce means a "new life."

"new life." But new lives are a problem when children have to be left behind in a fragment of the old lives. So you'll notice that the rationalizations are changing. It used to be that parents stayed together for the children's sake. stayed together for the children's sake. Now they frequently part for the children's sake — they don't want the youngsters to suffer from a divisive marriage, they say, and divorce is a solution full of hope. "The myth of romantic love," said Dr. Mavis Hetherington, a psychologist at the University of Virginia, "is being replaced by the myth of romantic divorce."

Dr. Hetherington has been researching the effects of divorce on children, and she isn't against divorce in hopeless marriages. Moreover, she acknowledged that a single parent doing a good job was better than two parents doing a poor one. What troubled her was what she saw as a growing Polly-anna attitude as couples hind them-selves to the almost certain distress divorce will bring.

In none of the divorced families she studied over a two-year period was there pure contentment over the separation, even in the worst of marria Always, at least one family member suffered. Often, it was the child.

So far there appears to be little solid So far there appears to be able sold information on just how divorce affects children. One researcher, in addition to Dr. Hetherington, who has been look-ing into it is Judith Wallerstein, who is "much worse after one year than after two months" of divorce because the situation usually deteriorated.

The first year's growing distress is caused in part, she said, by the fact that "there's no time out from parent-ing in the one-parent home." The mother becomes increasingly uncertain about her role as a parent.

A Different Time

"Parenting practices are extremely poor in the year after a divorce," Dr. Hetherington said. "Mothers bark out orders like generals in the field hut don't follow through on them. The fathers are going through the every-day-is-Christmas syndrome" when they visit the children visit the children.

"And then," Dr. Hetherington contin-ued, "they drop this indulged child off at the doorstep."

She said that mothers begin to feel more and more incompetent, which destroys their relationships with others. For that reason, Dr. Hetherington said, the most successful therapy for such families is child-rearing advice and as-sistance for the mother rather than more traditional psychotherapy to help her gain insight into herself. When the relationships with the children improve, nearly everything else does, too. In any case, she said, there's usually some improvement in the second year.

During all this the father who has relinquished custody is frequently not feeling very competent either, and the children sense that.

While the father is indulging the children, he may nevertheless be thor-oughly depressed. Dr. Mel Roman, a psychologist at the Albert Einstein

A Classic Cup for a Special Brew

By RUTH ROBINSON

When the intelligentsia of the day foregathered at the Caffe Greco in Rome in the early 1800's their steaming espresso was served in fine porce-lain cups commissioned from the house of Ginori. Today the 225-year-old fac-bory at Sesto Fiorentino, Italy, is still turning out the elegant footed cups for the popular cafe on the Via Condotti and has added a dinner service to match.

It doesn't bear the inscription "Caffe Greco" as do the cups, but then the originals used by such patrons as Wagner, Liszt, Goethe, Byron, Tennyson and Thackeray didn't either. The name in gold letters is a comparatively recent addition in deference, no doubt, to the current predilection for brand names. Habitués of the coffee house, however, will instantly recognize the dis-tinctive stripes of hittersweet, hlack and gold on pure white china. A place setting (dinner plate, dessert. plate, bread and hotter plate and plain teacup and saucer) sells for $94.50. The famous "Caffe Greco" cups and saucers are sold individually and make a nice gift at $48 in demitasse size, $62 in regular size. They are available at the Ginori shop, 711 Fifth Avenue, at 57th Street, as are cereal bowls, tureens and platters in the same pattern.

Ticket Hike, Too

By THOMAS ROGERS A Manhattan College baskethall team that only two weeks ago had lost all four games it played squared off last night against Purdue in the final of the Eastern College Athletic Conference's 25th Holiday Festival. The Jaspers had gained a shot at their third Festival championship by topping Long Island University and upsetting heavily fa-vored Pennsylvania on Wednesday night.

The jappers were able to play the Boilermakrs evenly for one half, but Purdue hit its first eight shots at the beginning of the second half and rolled to e 70-60 victory. Walter Jordan, an elusive 6-foot-8-inch forward, led the boilermakers with 25 points.

Dino Larry topped Manhattan's scor-ers wih 24 points. Jordan was selected at the tournament's most valuable player. Purchie, which received a first-round bye, had crushed Georgetown, 83-85, in the semifinal round. Darryl Early and Dino Larry, the only freshmen on the Manhattan squad, had played a large role in the Jaspers' tour-ament triumphs. Eady, making his first start against Pennsylvania, had scored 16 points and pulled down seven rebounds. Larry, in the starting lineup for the third winning game after playing as a reserve in the four opening Manhattan defeats, scored 11 points and played a key role in the 3-2 zone defense that cut off the Quakers' run-ning game in the second half.

Bruce Parkinson, Purdue's all-Amer-ica guard candidate, had led the Boiler-makers over Georgetown with a splendid defensive job on Derrick Jackson, the Hoyas' usual scoring leader, who wound up with 4 points.

Larry Excels for Jaspers

With Larry continuing the effective body work under the boards that had marked his tournament play in the first two games, the Jaspers played even with the Bollermakers for the first 15 minutes.

Lerry, scoring his 14th point on a layup that ended a fast break, brought about the game's 10th tie at 24-24. Larry had scored three baskets on offensive rebounds But Eady could not continue the fine offensive work that he had displayed against Pennsylvania. He left the game without a point midway through the first half.

The Boilermakers, shifting back and forth from a zone to a man-to-man defense, were led by Walter Jordan, a 6-foot-8-inch forward who broke the 24-24 tie with a 3-point play that raised his point total to 9. Also effective for Purdue was a 7-foot center, Joe Barry Carroll, who scored 4 of his 8 points in the final 3 minutes of the half as the Boilermakers built a 35-32 lead.

There had been five lead changes and 10 ties in the first 20 minutes, with the largest lead held at 31-26 by Pudue 2½ minutes before halftime, Larry, who hit on six of eight floor shots and four of four from the foul line, led both teams with 16 points, tying his career high for points, the same total he scored against Long Is-land University in the opening round. PASADENA. Calif., Dec. 30-It rained for a while here today, two days before the Rose Bowl encounter between Michigan and Southern California, and such was the response one might have thought that the San Andreas Fault had let go. Would the rain change the prac-tice plans of the teams? Would the prospects of rain on Saturday change the coaching strategies? Would the world ever be the same again?

Precipitation kicked off speculation because there had been no rain bere since Nov. 13, and because the last time rain fell on a Rose Bowl game was in 1955. But John Robinson, the was in 1955. Early and Late Losses

If Georgia, also 10-1, beats Pitt in the Sugar Bowl, then perhaps the Rose Bowl victor would emerge as the No. 1 team in the polls. The two coaches here argue that Michigan or Southern California should be ranked on top be-cause of more stremous schedules than Pitt's, a view that could be debated. Southern California's only loss came in its opening game against Missouri, 46-25, and Michigan lost its minth game, to Purdue, 16-14, but trounced Ohio State two weeks later for the Big Ten Conference title, Schembechler believes this is his best

Women's Tennis Faces Challenge By Transsexuals

By NEIL AMDUR Special to The New York Time

MIAMI, Dec. 30-Michelle Nordberg, 28-year-old transsexual, said today that she would try out for the women's tennis team at the University of Utah next week.

At the same time that Miss Nordberg made up her mind in Salt Lake City, Arlene Karasick, e 30-year-old tennis player, visited a doctor in North Miami Beach. Fla., and took a chromosome test that will allow her to join the women's professional tennis tour that begins 1977 qualifying next week in Portland, Ore.

derscore the dramatic change that con-fronts women's athletics, and tennis in particular, as a result of the efforts of Dr. Renee Richards, the controversial

Chromosome Test Now Regulated

While Dr. Richards attempts to negotiate her cause with the Women's Tennis Association rather than file suit to gain admittance to the pro tour, the structure of women's athletics hangs in the balance. For the first time, all players on the W.T.A. tour will be required to pass the Barr body chromosome test—their tissue must show the XX, or female, chromosomes -before being allowed to enter any tournament.

"I think it's a plece of garbage," Miss Karasick said today of the relatively simple test, which entails an ex-amination of tissue that is obtained by scratching the inside of the cheeks. "I don't think the girls should have to take it. If they want to keep Renee out, let all the girls in the association vote on the question. Then she will know herself. The women have never even voted on it.' Dr. Richards has refused to take the CHICAGO, Dec. 3 (AP)—Charles O. Finley, owner of the Oakland A's base-ball team, did not file a Federal Per-sonal income tax return for 1975, and his insurance company situated here, did not file returns for the years 1972 through 1975, the Internal Revenue Service said thoday.

did flot hie returns in the years 1972 through 1975, the Internal Revenue Service said today. Finley acknowledged that the returns had not been filed. But he said he had paid the LR.S. more than enough money to cover his and his firm's tax liabilities for those years. Finley, in the midst of a $3.5 million lawsuit against Bowie Ruhn's baseball commissioner, charged that the report of his and his firm's failure to file had been "planted" to make him look bad while the suit was being tried. He said he knew who had planted it, but re-fused to say who it was. Charles F. Miriani, LRS. district di-rector for northern Illinois, said the LRS. could not reveal whether Finley had paid any money. He said a Federal law required the service to disclose only whether a return had been filed. He said that Congress had epealed this law, effective midnight tomorrow, and

Cavaliers Top Sonics By 105-100

CLEVELAND, Dec. 30 (AP)—The Cleveland Cavaliers overcame a 42-point performance by Fred Brown as they ended a three-game losing streak with a 105-100 National Basketpell Association victory over the Seattle SuperSones tonight. Cleveland took a 56-55 edge into the third period and built it to 66-59.

Seattle then outscored the Cavaliers, 14-2, to grab a 73-68 lead. A field goal by the Cleveland reserve center, Nate Thurmond, tied the game at 81-81 early in the fourth period and Canar Bushell with a Compliant shead Campy Russell putthe Cavaliers ahead to stay moments later on a long iumper

Brown connected on 8 of 9 field goals in the first half and, at one point in the fourth quarter, had connected on 18 of 22 and finished with 19 of 25. Slick Watts added 20 points for the Sonics, butthe Cavaliers placed seven players in double figures led by Russell with 17

Pacers 104, Jazz 97 INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 30 (AP)— Danny Roundfield hit two straight bas-kets late in the fourth quarter tonight to snap a 92-92 tie and send the Indi-ana Pacers on their way to a 104-97 N.B.A. victory over the New Orleans Jazz at the Market Square Arena. Roundfield, playing his first game since suffering a severe wrist sprain, left the bench to score 25 points in tha final three periods. His last two baskets started the Pacers on a 12-2 tear that

Erving Asserts 76ers Fail To Accept Him or McGinnis

The Doctor is in, but he says the 76ers keep freezing him out. "I used to bave the ball more," said Julius Erving, Philadelphia's Dr. J. "The guy guarding me had to do an honest night's work to hold me down. He doesn't have to do a good oight's work DOW."

. When the 76ers bought Erving from the New York Nets before the season, it was supposed to make Philadelphia a championship team. But the 76ers are only four games above ...500 and struggling. The Doctor blames most of that on a lack of leadership.

In an interview with The Philadel-phia Bulletin, Erving said, "When I came here, I thought in terms of be-ing a leader, I figured George [McGin-nls] and I should be the leaders, but we haven't here account if the net a court haven't been accepted. It's not an easy group of guys to talk with."

Erving spoke about his own level of play, which has been subpar this sea-soo. He said, "I'm not a water faucet. I can't be turned on and off. I cao't go without handling the ball eight or nine times down the court, and then do it " do it."

So far, the Celtics' Dave Cowens is the only pro basketball player to take a leave of abscore during the season. But Bob Lanier, Detroit's top scorer and rebounder, is considering the same thing. "My eyes are starting to twitch just from nerves," Lanier said, "and right now I'm at the point where I just ight take a rest, you know, just like Cowens, I'm thinking about the same thing. That's how serious the situation is." Lanier is upset at the lack of harmony on the Pistons, coosidered to be a consequence of having too many good players and oot enough playing time to satisfy all of them.

Chuck Foreman's Lawyer Says Pact Has to Wait

BLOOMINGTON, Minn, Dec. 30 (AP) -His lawyer says the contract prob-lens of Chuck Foreman, Minnesota Viking running back, are "totally un-resolved" but won't be dealt with until after the Super Bowl game with the Oakland Raiders on Jan, 9.

Forensan is under contract for two more years, but he is dissatisfied with the pact. He signed a long-term coo-tract in 1975 for what he now feels is far short of his value to Minnesota. He was a training-camp holdout last sumner .

Foreman's current contract was signed when he was represented by a former Cleveland Brown guard, John Wooten, Foreman oow is represented by Tom Reich of Pittsburgh. In a telephone interview last night, Reich said the matter "will be resolved, one way or the other, after the Super Bowi. But nothing in the world is going to interfere with the Vikings' preparations for the Super Bowl," Reich added.

Bert Jones, who seems to collect, awards like some men collect stamps, and Forrest Gregg, who took the Cleveland Browns to more victories this season than anyone expected, were the big winners yesterday as The Associat-ed Press named its most valuable player and coach of the year in the National Football League. Jones, the Baltimore quarterback who bad previously been named the N.F.L.'s offensive player of the year, received 41 of the 84 ballots cast by sportwriters and sports broadcasters representing the 28 N.F.L. franchises, Jack Lambert, the Pittsburgh linebacker, and Kenny Stabler, the Oakland quarterback, finished second and third to Jones, respectively.

Gregg, who brought the Browns back from a record of 3 victories and 11 losses last year to 9-5 this season, edged Chuck Fairbanks, the New Engnd coach, in the voting. The Browns started this season with a 1-3 record. Players around the league say that Gregg's institution of a $1,000 fine for hreaking curfew after the team was 1-3 heiped set the stage for the turnaround. Gregg, who was all-pro for eight seasons as a Green Bay Packer. credited "struggling and hard work" for the Browns' success.

Once the Sugar Bowl approached the Orange and Cotton Bowl payoff figure of $950,000, Pitt's decision was based upon being able to play the highest-ranked opponent possible. Georgia is ranked fifth and thus higher than either Colorado or Houston. But if the fee were still $750,000 at the Sugar Bowl, Pitt would have probably opted to play Colorado while Ohio State would be playing in the Sugar Bowl

Dr. Posvar said that if the take-home pay from the Sugar Bowl remained at $750,000, "It would have been a factor in our judgment because it would have been a difference of $150,000 in our programs."

The Pittsburgh chancellor said that after expenses from the $900,000, Pitt would be able to put "$100,000 into library acquisitions and improved li-brary materials" among other things.

A Matter of Revenues

Meanwhile, ABC Sports executives rushed to the scene from New York to see what must he done in case they have problems televising the game. They must make the money from com-marcials to pay off the new contract to the Sugar Bowl, which in turn must pay Pittsburgh and Georgia a total of $1.8 million. Without a show, ABC worth receive its increase for commerwon't receive its income for commercials_

Jim Spence, vice president in charge of production for ABC Sports, said, "We hope there will be no strike and that it will be sattled. But if there is a strike, we hope our engineers will work, but if these things do not hap-pen we may have to come up with some contingency plans."

Spence then indicated that the chances were good the game would be televisd no matter what, although he didn't want to make an assurance of that. He pointed out that he has no right or knowledge that will permit him to say what his union engineers might do. However, in similar situa-tions in the past, ABC executive per-sonnel had manned the engineering equipment.

ABC is scheduled to begin televising the Sugar Bowl et 10:30 A.M. local time in New Orleans, 11:30 New York time. The kickoff is to be at 11:40 Eastern

When Pitt accepted the Sugar Bowl bid, ABC Sports was accused of having offered Pittsburgh an extra national television appearance during the regular season next year, which would be worth about $220,000 to the university. This was supposed to make up for the difference between Sugar and Orange Bowl income, Both Deny Claim.

Both ABC and Pittshurgh denied this at the time and Dr. Posvar said today that ABC had never approached any university officials about the Sugar Bowl payoff. ABC has the contract for the weekly regular-season televising of college football games.

ABC apparently did not make such an overture. But the network eigned new contract that just upped the ante it pays to the Sugar Bowl in order to get what is the closest thing to a battle for the unofficial national college football championship this year. If Pitt wins, it will obviously be rated national Berle ofered his statement during a luncheon at the Whiteface Chalet following the dedication of new dual (quad) chairlifts on Whiteface Mountain, which will carry competitors up the slopes for all three of the Alpine events at the international games.

The new rides, capable of providing transportation for four skiers on the two parallel double chairlifts, were the

More Improvements Planned

Today's quad lift dedication, held in temperatures slightly above zero, is part of a $4.975 million improvement program at Whiteface. Plans also call for the enlargement and expansion of facilities at the base lodge and installations ot new snowmaking equipment to replace the present system that has been in use since 1962.

"New snowmakers will enable Whiteface to open two to three weeks earlier each season and will mean an added contribution to the North Coun-try's economy," concluded Berle.

Dr. Richards Termed a 'Heroine' Transsexuals are eligible for women's collegiate sports as long as they fulfill the academic requirements. But until last summer, said Miss Nordberg, a sen-lor, she lacked the courage to step for-ward and consider competing.

"When Rence came forward, that made her a heroine in my eyes," the Utah student said by phone today from Salt Lake City. "It gave me the courage of my convictions and made me realize that I could do it."

Utah athletic officials say they are adopting a "low-key" attitude to see whether Miss Nordberg is serious or whether her campus activity is a "publicity stunt."

"I think she was waiting for us to say no," Miss Gardner said, "But the tennis coach told her she could try ont any time, and he invited her. So we'll just have to wait and see if she comes out for the new season."

Like most transsexuals, Miss Nordberg believes the questian of chromosomes is secondary.

"I'm happier now than I've over been," she said. "Before the operation, when I would look in the hathroom been." mirror to shave, I saw a woman trapped inside me trying to get out." Miss Nordberg, who said she began playing tennis at the age of 12 in the Salt Lake City area, believes she can win a spot on the university's women's team.

"Renee's a world-class nlaver. I'm not," she said. "But I will he in a few years."

Dr. Richards, an ophthalmologist, who was known as Rici ard Raskind before undergoing a sex-change opera-tion in September 1975, apparently has become more than a symbol for transsexuals only. Several women who are interested in playing the W.T.A. tour have expressed private concern about taking the Barr body test, failing it and weathering the social implications.

"One woman told me ehe took the test 15 years and and come out XO instead of XX," Dr. Richards said today by phone from Newport Beach, Calif. "She said her doctor told her something was unbalanced in her chromosomes. But that doesn't mean she's not a woman. Should she be disqualified from the tour because of some minor abnormality?"

A New Beginning, A New Year

Each day this week we have published on this page editorials under the general heading: A New Beginning. This is the tenth and last of a series designed to examine some of the major domestic and foreign issues facing the Carter Administration and the American people during the coming year.

The election to the Presidency last month of an almost totally nnknown newcomer to the national scene gives to the Administration that takes office on Jan. 20 an unprecedented opportunity both to unite the country and, in John F. Kennedy's still-applicable phrase, to get it moving again. Free of binding obligations to any special-interest sector of American society, Presidentelect Carter, with the support of a friendly if quizzical Congress, can if he chooses provide the kind of highminded progressive-and pragmatic-leadership whose promise won him the election. The American people yearn, we believe, for a President of moral-but not moralistic - conviction, and courageous --- hut not doctrinaire-liberalism to set the tone of the nation's domestic as well as foreign policy for the next four or more years.

This is what Governor Carter has still to demonstrate and this is what, in these first few weeks of the Cabinet selection process, he has not yet succeeded in doing. Although individually the members of the new Cabinet, and those other top advisers who have already been named, are men and women of ability and accomplishment, many with notable records of service to the nation, the Cabinet taken as a whole, while strong enough, is unexciting-reflecting the innately cautious rather than the innovative or dynamic side of Mr. Carter's character.

His choice of Attorney General-and the Charade that preceded that selection-is particularly disappointing because Judge Bell does not meet Mr. Carter's own previously stated stringent qualifications for appointment to this vitally important post, so abused by Presidents Nixon, Truman and other Presidents of the past.

It is also disconcerting that, again taken as a whole, the President-elect's major foreign policy advisers, while men of great distinction, have a generally hard-line hackground-especially in respect to early American participation in the Vietnam War. Mr. Carter evidently was not looking primarily for innovators but, rather, for managers - and he has found some exceedingly competent ones.

A Time for Decision

But the needs of the American people as they enter their third century under a new Administration go far heyond mere competence in government, though obviously that is something greatly to be desired. This courtry is beset by some very fundamental problems that . have in no sense been dissipated by the end of the Vietnam nightmare, the exorcism of Watergate, the slowdown its own citizens; against government connivance with hig business, blg labor or big individuals in illegal activities at home or abroad; against racial and sexual discrimination in both public and private sectors; against infringement of rights, denial of justice or suppression of the unpopular, the unorthodox and the uncouth. In virtually every other country of the world, these evils exist in greater depth and scope than in the United States; but that they exist to the degree they do, despite our constitutional system, is unacceptable.

And so is the continuance, at anything like its present level, of what we described in a previous editorial as the "social crisis." This refers especially to the depressed status of America's minorities, whose employment, health, housing and other conditions of life are substandard in vast disproportion to the rest of the population.

Closely allied to the social--or, to put it more bluntly, racial-crisis is the plight of the cities, which from one end of the country to the other have been most directly affected by the hlack and Hispanic migration with all of its social, economic-and political-consequences, No problem is more urgent for the new Administration to tackle with a fresh eye and fresh mind than the urban crisis, for wrapped up in it are all the correlative questions of how best to handle unemployment, welfare, health, crime, housing, transportation, education and environment in the context of the American city and suburbs, where the overwhelming majority of Americans now work and live.

The National Economy

The President-elect himself seems to feel that the national economy, with its twin plagues of continued inflation and continued unemployment, requires the most immediate attention of his new Administration. He can hardly be faulted on this judgment; for on a further steady slowdown of the rate of inflation and a sharp reduction in the unemployment rolls, the efficacy of virtually all other social action programs will depend.

It is at the beginning of his new Administration that Mr. Carter will be in the most favorable position, vis-a-vis hoth Congress and the public, to pursue an activist policy in the economic as in other areas; and the country has a right to expect that in matters of fiscal reform no less than in governmental reorganization, the new President will push forward firmly and aggressively in accordance with his campaign declarations and his party platform.

The same may be said of one of the most all-encompassing issues of the present era: the environmental issue, the outcome of which in the next four years will determine the shape and quality of American civilization for, literally, centuries to come. Here, in attempting to preserve the physical quality of the American environment from further deterioration, particularly in air and water pollution, and indeed to raise it from the unsatisfactory level it has already reached, the long-term public ill often come into brusoue co short-term special interest-of industry, commerce, or labor. Nowhere is this problem likely to become more acute than in the development of energy resources; but there is no legitimate reason wby the nation cannot absorb the additional costs required hy the simultaneous satisfaction of its energy needs and protection of the natural environment.

Letters to the Editor

On the Thorny Question of Amnesty

To the Editor: From what one reads in the news-

apers, President-elect Carter is fathoming some simple, blanket, across-the-hoard prescription to be applicable to all those involved in the amnesty problem. This would, of course, he a facile way for Mr. Carter to dispose of a thorny enigma, but the difficulty is that the reasons and the motives which caused or prompted the failures to serve were so many, and so diverse, that the cases are not all, or even in the main, susceptible of omnibus treatment. For example: Is the man who ran away only because he was too cowardly to serve, or because he would find it more profitable, financially, to sneak off than to serve, to be treated in the same way as the man who would not serve hecause of conscience, or religious scruples honestly and sincerely held? Between these two extremes there were myriad other reasons and motives some good, some had, some debatable, some not. Are they all to be treated alike by an omhibus prescription applicable to everyone?

And how would such a prescription affect those left behind: the wives made widows, the children left fatherless and the parents who lost their children-in many cases because of the death in battle of a soldier who was required to serve to fill a vacancy created by one who ran away? And what of soldiers who, for like reason, had to serve, only to return to enter. veterans' hospitals or other institutions, there to remain for the rest of their lives because of bodies, or minds, or both, shattered by injuries received. in action?

Are our obligations to those referred to above, and countless others who could be described, less than our

A Black Voter on Carter To the Editor:

Others may wish to "honeymoon" until the inaugural, but this hlack's hope, balloted for Carter-Mondale, has been early dashed by both the comment and appointments coming out of Georgia.

After October promises of jobcreation and unemployment reduction we have Mr. Carter allowing now as bow he expects a 5 to 7 percent jobless rate for his term in office. Budget Director-designate Lance says it will he very difficult to lower unemployment to 6.5 percent the first year. Charles Schultze, economic chiefdesignate, commenting unfavorably on the Humphrey-Hawkins job bill, argues that meaningful job creation can only occur within a framework of containing Inflation, is this not the Nixon-Ford policy of fighting rising prices with unemployment? Didn't work then and won't now, And in the meantime blacks and other minorities will contique to suffer disproportionately. If the out-of-work figure is. 8 percent

Is there any single prescription or formula for granting amnesty, which, with justice and fairness, can be applied indiscriminately in all cases, and without consideration of the facts in the particular case? GEORGE TROSK New York, Dec. 15, 1976

To the Editor: In his Dec. 17 letter Melvin Shaw stated that "there can be no greater immorality than to give pardon or amnesty to those who turned their backs on their country" when there is no way to belp the 50,000 casualties. This is a typical statement of the position of many of the opponents of amnesty, but it ignores the real issue. After World War II the United States took part in war crimes trials at which a number of people were con-

Penn Station Progress? To the Editor:

On Dec. 15, The Times ran a short news article entitled "A Touch of Comfort Comes to Penn Station." It implied that the bauling away of the wooden henches from Penn Station and their replacement with plastic no way deprive an accuse. seats was a distinct improvement. I rights. must disagree.

When the original McKim, Mead, and White structure was destroyed, the public realized belatedly that a New York landmark had been lost. Only one part of the original structure remained - the benches. These benches were in excellent conditionbeautiful dark, hard wood. They were very comfortable with high backs to give proper support to the body. An unlimited number of people could fit on each bench. The dark wood lent drama and warmth to the modern, hare, pale gray waiting room. But that they were simply following the Civil War the commandar 2511 convicted of crimes when his ing orders" defense was rejec it is U.S. law that soldiers have obligation to consider the m obeying military orders. of inflation and the apparent beginnings of economic recovery.

If this new year and new Administration are indeed going to prove to be a new beginning in anything more than the most superficial sense, the new President, backed by the new Cabinet and the new Congress, will have to do something that few new Presidents have done in modern American history-though many have pretended to do so. Mr. Carter, in Adlai Stevenson's memorable words, will have to "talk sense to the American people." He will have to break away from the donhletalk of the campaign that has already returned to plague him. Strong supporters of Mr. Carter's election, we were nevertheless concerned about the ambiguities and fuzziness in his presentation of some issues; but if there ever was a proper time for that-which we doubt-that time is long since past.

The fundamentally new condition in which the American system now must operate-new in the past two decades hnt still unperceived by most Americans and still unacknowledged by most politicians-is that the United States is no longer politically, economically or militarily omnipotent, nor morally the exemplar to theworld, if it ever was. While in most respects relatively better off than virtually all other countries, the United States today has no reason for complacency and every reason to insist upon that economic, social, political and moral strengthening, of which the new leadership held out so clear a promise.

It is that moral strengthening of our national life in both domestic and foreign policy, and in both public and private sectors, that deserves top priority. What this means is not the offensive kind of moralistic piety that has been occasionally expressed in recent years both by Presidents and Presidential candidates, but rather a reaffirmation in thought and action of the moral and ethical values embodied in those two basic documents -Declaration and Constitution-on which rests the entire framework of American polity,

Rededication to Freedom

What this means, further, is that we-President, legislatures, courts and people-need to rededicate ourselves to the principles of human freedom and individual llherty, to equality of all persons before the law, to protection of weak from strong, to the continued development among ourselves of a social conscience, and to a broad toleration of the differences among us not only of race, creed and color, but also of personal mores and political beliefs. To this end, it is necessary to rebuild that spirit of mutual trust and confidence of Americans in each other and in themselves that has been so severely shaken during these past two decades of McCarthyism, of Vietnam, of Watergate and of the public and private law-breaking, cynicism, suspicion and corruption that have pervaded too much of American society.

How to rebuild? One way is by vigorously restoring and reinforcing the policy against government spying on stars of our great democracy.

Foreign Policy

In the cram course on foreign affairs to, which he subjected himself the past two or three years, former Governor Carter learned that the foundation of this country's international relationships lies in the firmness of association with our traditional allies of Western Europe, together with Canada and, now, Japan, This in no sense means that there should be any weakening of efforts to achieve a realistic détente with the Soviet Union as symbolized hy successful completion of the strategic arms limitation talks. This, in turn, could readily induce a practicable reduction in the swollen military hudget that is already surfeited with several billion dollars' worth of fat.

In the Middle East, a continuation of Secretary Kissinger's valiant and partially successful attempt to achieve a stahility that could yet lead to peace is strongly indicated. But also the new Administration will have to pay closer attention from the outset to Africa, Latin America, the developing world and, yes, the United Nations, than did its predecessor. A more sympathetic understanding of the demands of the poorer nations for a sharing of the world's limited resources, together with a new emphasis on population control, is to become increasingly necessary, if-quite apart from unselfish reasons-a global conflagration is ultimately to be avoided.

At least one dramatic change in present American policy is indicated: a thoroughgoing revision downward. of the unconscionable sale of arms to virtually any non-Communist nation in the world willing to pay for them. And the non-Communist label, as the United States should have long since learned from bitter experience, is itself no guarantee of purity, democracy or decency. Even the machinations of a few unscrupuious American companies abroad-which, when exposed, have resulted in political convulsions from Japan to Italy-have done less damage to the long-range interests of the United States than has the continuing, indiscriminate, shameful traffic in sophisticated weapons.

This can indeed be a happier New Year for the country and the national Administration if the President-elect has the courage and vision to face up to the profoundly difficult issues affecting the nation and the world, and is as honest and direct as be has promised to be in discussing them with the American people. Much will depend, too, on the willingness of this people to support the hard decisions and the sacrifices that may be necessary in coming years to give new reality and new life to the ideals that for two centuries have been the guiding.

hatred of slavery and commitment to By Eric Foner PRINCETON, N. J .-- "Amy Carter to Attend Thaddens Stevens School in Washington." What made this story newsworthy was the fact that no President since Theodore Roosevelt has sent his children to public school. To the historian; however, the name Thaddeus Stevens suggests some unusual ironies. For to generations of Americans, Stevens was the "scourge of the South," the evil genius of. radical Reconstruction. Who was this "horrible old man," as one historian called him, and why is a school in the nation's capital named after him? I recently put this question to an American history class at Princeton, only to discover that not a single student had heard of Stevens. This is a pity, because he was one of the most remarkable figures in 19thcentury American politics.

Two principles shaped Stevens's public career. One was his belief in public education. As a member of the Pennsylvania Legislature in the 1830's, Stevens was known as the "Father of the Common School" because of his efforts to prevent the retrenchment of public schooling during a state the champion of barbarism (black hudget crisis. The second was his rule) in the South.

the equal rights of black Americans. Recent historians have shown thet Stevens was not the architect of Reconstruction after the Civil War, as was long believed. Yet his influence was hardly negligible. As leader of the radical Republicans in Congress, he outlined a series of measures toward which events forced the majority of his party to move. He was among the first to argue that slavery would hava to be abolished to win the Civil War, that the army should enlist black troops, that freed men be granted the right to vote, and that a period of military rule of the defeated South was inevitable. But his most cherished plan-a proposal to divide Southern plantations among the landless poor, hlack and white—was defeated. Stevens died in 1868, revered by millions. His funeral was said to have elicited an outpouring of grief matched only by that of Lincoln. But as the nation retreated from Reconstruction and the ideal of an interracial democracy, Stevens was first maligned and then forgotten, although to many blacks he remained a hero. He was the evil "Stoneman" of D. W. Griffith's film "Birth of a Nation," portrayed as

As historians exaited the magna-nimity of Lincoln and Andrew Johnson, Stevens came to symbolize Northern malice, revenga and irrational hatred. of the South. Writers speculated on the reasons for his radical views. Explanations included the burning of his iron works by Confederate troops during the Civil War, his employment of a mulatto bousekeeper rumored to be his mistress, the psychological consequences of a club foot, and his role as spokesman for Northern business interests (even though those interests opposed his land-redistribution plans). During Reconstruction, the young Georges Clemenceau, reporting American events for the French press, described Stevens as the "Robespierre" of one of the "most radical revolutions known to history." But what is most striking is how thoroughly traditional his beliefs actually were. What could be more American than support for universal suffrage, defense of a free public school system, and the conviction that small farmers are the backbone of a republic?

"Nothing is so likely to make a man a good citizen as to make him a freeholder," Stevens argued in 1865, defending his land policy. "Small independent landholders are the support and guardian of republican liberty."

The words could have been written by Jefferson. What set Stevens apart, of course, was simply that he wanted to apply these principles to blacks as well as whites.

Stevens hoped to create a democratic Republican Party in the South, through the redistribution of land. He hoped the policy would destroy the power of the planters, provide an economic underpinning for emancipation and forge an identity of interests be-tween poor whites and blacks. His plan was rejected, but it does seem fitting that a century after the end of Reconstruction, a Southern President elected by the descendants of these same slaves and poor whites should plan to send his daughter to a school named for Thaddeus Stevens.

The story has one final irony. For most of its history, Thaddeus Stevens School was a segregated institution. Yet Stevens himself, a strong opponent of segregation, eveo insisted on being buried in a rare interracial cemetery, to illustrate, as he wrote in his epitaph, "the principles which I advocated through a loog life: equality of man before his Creator."

MILL VALLEY, Calif .-- I'm not a good celebrator. I usually toddle off to bed before the Late Show, to . be awakened, in puzzlement, by the hooting of revelers. What day is it? I seldom know. For me, New Year's Day is too close to Christmas, and they are both too close to my hirthday.

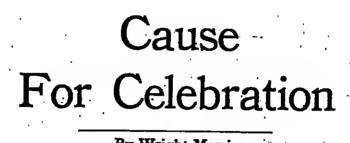

Looking forward to my birthday I often overlooked New Year's Eve.

My first-hand experience as a reveler began in Omaha. A large family of girls lived next door who proved hard to marry off. Over one summer they married off two, which was certainly cause for celebration. We beat on pans, pails and garbage-can lids until they chased us away.

Even at an early age, and relatively inexperienced. I sensed a dilemma as a celebrator. Was it for something that came to an end, or something that began? Cries of "The King Is Dead! Long Live the King!" had often ruined good movies for me, leaving me uncertain of mind if I was meant to grieve, or wildly rejoice. That's how I feel about New Year's Eve, in case it finds me awake.

Just celebrating for the hell of it is not strange to me, and makes more sense. When the American Legion came to Omaha I marched with everybody, in all directions. I also played a small part in the dropping of pillowcases full ot water, from high places, on the other marchers. I felt no confusion, merely a desire to run for my life.

Earlier in my experience I recalled the First War ending with the ringing of church bells, a clamor that gava me much food for thought. Was it the end of the world? It had been expected most of that fall. I still see my father at the raised front window, and hear the yeiping of dogs. It's not easy to know forsure what it is you celebrate. For me, for example, the Fourth of July has been more of a time of mourning than rejoicing. On one occasion I singed off my eyebrows. Patty Hearst is out of prison and Phil Shinnick is in, and thereby hangs a tale of American justice.

Mr. Shinnick, 34, once held the world record for the long-jump and twice represented the United States in the Olympic Games. In 1972, be became the athletic director at Livingston College of Rutgers University. But he is now off the university's payroll and in the Allenwood Federal Penitentiary in Pennsylvania.

No one contends that Mr. Shionick beiog punished for a crime. He is not even charged with a crime. He has been imprisoned on civil contempt charges growing out of his appearance before a grand jury in Scranton, Pa., last Aug. 13.

At that grand jury hearing, Mr. Shinnick did not refuse to answer ques-tions. He did not refuse to give the grand jury any evidence that it required for its own deliberations. He refused, instead, to give the Federal Bureau of Investigation his fingerprints, samples of his handwriting and clippings of his hair.

When Mr. Shinnick appeared in the grand jury room-without a lawyer, as all witnesses must-a United States Attorney gave the foremao a statement to read. The statement instructed Mr. Shinnick to give fingerprints, writing samples and hair clippings to the F.B.I. in a room adjacent to that of the grand jury.

Now it happens that the F.B.L does not have subpoena power. Outside the grand jury room, the bureau would have no legal way to get such exemplars from Mr. Shinnick or any other unconvicted citizen who did not want to provide them.

It happens, further, that the fingerprints of Mr. Shinnick, a former Air Force captain, are easily available to the F.B.L through Air Force records. So are samples of his handwriting, since his Air Forca joh involved writing reports. And he offered to give the grand jury-not the F.B.I.-a hair sample, which would be sealed in an envelope and beld in custody of that Scranton district court. If the Government had bair samples it wanted to match against his, he said, the Government's hair samples could be beld in tha same fashion, to guard against mbc-up or misuse.

Upon Mr. Shinnick's inquiry, moreover, the grand jury could give him no reason why these exemplars were necessary to its investigation. He bad celeorators. Not a patriot's devotion but greed and cunning led to my miscalculation. In notes not yet in the appropriate archive I find this: Left Omaha tor Chicago. This was the beginning of a bold new life, but note how I emphasize the ending. Left Umaha, A quick survey of my losses included a flannel pocket torn from sace kuth's Yankee pants and a cigar box full of marples known as snotties. The snothes have gained prominence, recently, in the way the blue and white ones resemble planet earth seen from space. You never know when looking backward is looking forward, and the reverse.

A friend and neighbor of mine, a Jewish boy named David, awakened me to further complications. He had a New Year of his own. He wanted me to share it. He brought to my attention all of my losses. How had I blindly stumbled from year to year in the past? .

In Chicago this dilemma was not so pressing since was usually sick with something over New Year's. I lay in bed listening to Guy Lombardo on the radio. I can remember the sickness, but the New Year's slips my mind.

There was one I do remember, however, when I did nothing for two weeks hut go to movies. I lived on the popcorn for sale in the lobhies, and drank a lot of free water. I often went to four or five movies a day, sometimes the same one.

Reflecting on this behavior, as I am doing now, has not led me to any firm conclusions.

This period was followed by a passion to weigh myself. Along with my weight the scales gave me a card that told my fortune, if I wanted to believe it. The New Year just slipped by while I was living it up and weighing myself.

In California, where I went to college, I had the problem that time seemed to have stopped. The idea of Christmas was such a joke that I'd rather leave it unmentioned. It often rained like crazy over Christmas, or on the Rose Bowl football game on New Year's. The importance of this game is to remind everybody, especially those in California, that time really passes. Without wrinkles most California people wouldn't know it.

The best way to see tha time in California is on the calendars they wear on watch bands. The days are so small you can hardly read them. In spite of all that, I wouldn't currently think of living anywhere else. It now seems long ago as the Middle Ages that I was asked to babysit a new litter of pigs. This was in Austria, entre les guerres, as they used to say.

A huge cream-colored sow, with pink under-painting showing on her belly, her ears, and her snont, sprawled on yellow straw in one corner of the house, fenced off by logs. My job was to keep tha piglets at the spigots, and grab them if she rolled.

I sat inside the fence, with a forked stick, and pushed or fished as the occasion required. Time passed. I did not know what day or night it was. The mother sow snuffled, snorfelled and snorted with happiness. Through her long lashes she languidly eyed me, Her hooves were as clean and polished as the handles of carving knives. She shared the room with six people but there was never any question of priority.

This was a happening, long anticipated. This was ooe beginning that would never end. Only later, relieved of my duties, did I discover that I had seen out the old year and seen in the new one with a multiple : birth. That was cause for celebration, whether I'm a good celebrator or not.

not been given "use immunity," a prosecutorial device that effectively removes the Fifth Ameodment rights against self-incrimination of the person granted such immunity.

But Mr. Shinnick's refusal, not to answer grand jury questions hut to give the F.B.I. materials it otherwise could not legally have obtained, has resulted in his imprisonment for civil contempt. His incarceration, which began Nov. 30, could last for the life of the grand jury-until next July-and could be resumed if the same drama is played out hefore a successor grand jury. Meanwhile Rutgers has announced that it "will stop payment of his salary for as long as he remains unabla to meet his classes."

What is this Kafkaesque nightmare all about, and how could it happen in a country where, supposedly, grand juries are provided to protect citizens from the arbitrary use of government power?

Apparently, the F.B.L suspects Mr. Shinnick of having heen involved in, or at least of knowing something about, the alleged harboring of Patricia Hearst in a Pennsylvania farmhouse in 1974. The Government told his attorney that the Air Force fingerprints and handwriting samples would not be "good enough" to use in a trial - which makes it clear that the grand jury was heing used to force Mr. Shinnick to provide evidence that might be used against him in court.

Mr. Shinnick, who is more radical politically than the F.B.L thinks proper, in turn suspects that the F.B.L. wants the hair clippings and other exemplars in order to concoct a frameup linking him criminally to Patty Hearst or those who protected her. He contends also that the subpoena summoning him to the grand jury was based on a wiretap put on his telephone and another on his attorney's telephone.

However that may be, the Shinnick case is one more in a lengthening pattern of blatant government use of grand juries for inquisitorial rather than accusatory purposes. The late Senator Philip Hart once said that grand juries now were being commonly used "to conduct political surveillances and build dossiers in the guise of investigating specific offenses" and it seems clear that that is about what the Government tried to do in the Shinnick case.

Attorney Geoeral Levi nevertheless strongly resisted reform legislation debated in Congress last session. That legislation will be introduced again next year and the Shinnick case may give it new urgency --- hut hardly enough to get him out of prison before. July,

WARNING ON SEALANT REVISED BY NEW YORK

Consumer Panel Says G.E. Product Using Arsenic Appears Safe, but Needs Further Testing

By RICHARD SEVERO

The State Consumer Protection Board yesterday revised a warning it had issued 24 hours earlier on a silicone caulking sealing compound made by Geoeral Electric.

In a new statement, the board said the substance appeared safe for general use, but that "further testing is needed to determine if the product can be safely used in the kitchen."

The board made the announcement amid reports that General Electric officials had made many calls to various state officials, indicating that if the original consumer alert announced on Wednesday was not changed, the company might have to sbut down some of its installa tions in New York State.

The product in questioo is marketed as White Silicone Bathtub Caulk & Seal and "New White Silicone Bathtub Caulk & Seal."

It became the subject of widesprea public interest and controversy last Tues day, when The New York Times pub lished an article describing how members of a Westchester County family suffered from chronic arsenic poisoning, which they believe was caused by circumst arising from the use of the sealant to repair the interior of their dishwasher The sealant contains arsenic

The circumstances surrounding the poisoning have never been explained to the satisfaction of all concerned, but Jane Darnell contended that the sealant did not bond properly to the vinyl interior, flaked off in tiny particles and stuck to her dishware and silverware and that she could not totally remove the substance, although she tried. In recent weeks, General Electric has offered to pay $25,000 as an out-of-court settlement. Mrs. Darnell, as of last night, remained undecided as to what to do. She said ber attorney had informed ber that he needed $4,000 in out-of-pocket expenses immediately if he was to con-tinue the case, plus an indeterminate sum for expert witnesses.

The Darnells, a middle-income family with substantial tuition hills, say they are unable to come up with that kind of money. As a result, she has the General Electric proposal under consideration. General Electric, which already regards the case as settled, has said it does not regard the settlement offer as an admis-sion of culpability. Kepone Worker Suits Are Settled Out of Court With Judge's Backing

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 30 (UPI)-A Federal district judge approved out-of-court settlements today in three suits brought by Hopewell chemical workers and their families who were sickened by the pesticide Kepone.

Judge Robert R. Merhige dismissed the cases after studying the settlements and holdiog a special hearing. The dollar amounts of the settlements were not disclosed.

The 19 chemical workers and several family members lovolved in the three suits sought $1 million to $3 million a person from the Allied Chemical Corporation and the Hooker Chemical Corpora tion, which supplied raw materials for Kepone. Dale Gilbert, who along with James

Moore headed the two workers' suits, and his wife Janice, who headed the family suit, said they were "very well pleased" with the settlement, but declined to say how much they would receive. The Kepone was produced by the now defunct Life Science Products Company to Hopewell under contract to Allied. It closed in the summer of 1975.

statistics. But several thousand refuges are known to have returned to Hungary over the years, according to Mr. Papp, and invariably there were those who did not adapt and did not succeed.

Mr. Papp, after the usual greenhorn adventures, with a strange language, strange customs and a strange land, won a scholarship to Pratt Institute and completed the training in architecture he had begun in Hungary. Mr. Liptak got a scholarship to the Stavens Institute of Technology, became a civil engineer, wrote seven technical handbooks and bought a suburban house with a swimming pool in cearby Stamford.

Miss Nagy worked her way through the New School for Social Research as a laboratory technician, and then through Stanford University. She is now Dr. Nagy, a North Bellmore, L.I., pediatrician. Laszlo Korbuly was admitted to the Univer-sity of Notre Dame oo a scholarship, as was his brother Charles, and became an architect in South Bend, Ind. Charles Korbuly dropped out of school to marry an Indiana woman, and moved to Los Angeles, where he is now an executive with General Telephooe and Electronics.

The More Adenturous'

Tha refugees' success was in large part due to the inherently selective process that made them political exiles, according to Mr. Papp, who headed the Hungarian Students' Association here for several years after the revolt. 'Those who opted to come here were more adventurous, more industrious, more self-confident," he said.

The Papps, by way of example, mede up their minds to-leave Hungary in a half hour, crossed the border the oext day, sold the apricot hrandy within minutes for the price of a pair of train tickets to Vienna and were on their way with hardly a backward glance. And Mr. Liptak started out brazenly taking jobs for which he was not gratified

And Mr. Liptak started out brazenly taking jobs for which he was not qualified. "I remember one of my first jobs was for a map-maker, a fellow who really didn't oeed help hut wanted to be nice to Rungarian refugees," Mr. Liptak recalled. "The first day he came over and said 'Copy this in pencil.' I sat there looking busy until noon, when I ran home, looked up the word 'pencil' in a dictionary, and came back and did it."

All of the five students came from middle-class-backgrounds and had wanted to become professionals. But after the Com-munist-takeover in 1949, the children of the middle classes were discriminated against as the Hungarian Government attempted to replace the coutnry's rigid and archaic class structure with a classless society. structure with a classless society. "I came here because it was a matter of seeing that my future was going ooplace fast in Hungary," Charles Korbuly explained. "I couldn't get into the university because of my bourgeois background, and I hoped to make more of myself, in the factory job they put me into. "My father had come here in the early 1930's for a few months, and he told my brother and I that this was the place to go because here with hard work you can do anything. State Comptroller Arthur Levitt warned yesterday that the state would be vulnerabla to recurring credit crises as long as it had to borrow most of the money it channeled to local governments every year. He urged a "major effort" to Mr. McLoughlin said that since Com-missioner Codd was eppointed in 1974, tha department's annual overtima bill bad was spent as it was received from the taxpayers, instead of months in advance.

Sanitation Workers Returning in Newark

solal to The New York Time

NEWARK, Dec. 30-Striking sanitation workers began picking up garbage late today for the first time in five days after their union leaders and Newark officials reported "substantial progress" toward settling a wage dispute.

About 3,000 tons of garbage have piled up in residential neighborhoods since the last collection last Friday, just just before the Christmas holiday. The sanitation workers went on strike Monday to press their demands for $1,500-a-year across-the-board pay increases for the city's 900 public works

Mr. Christian, the authority chairman, said that be bad discussed the situation with City Hall and that the the struction Mr. Feinstein based his conclusions on with City Hall and that that was his understanding, too. A spokesman for Governor Carey, who is chairman of the Control Board, said, "We baven't seen it, and we can't comment on it." Mr. Berger was out of the country and could not be reached.

Both Mr. Feinstein and Mr. Christian were a little hazy on what productivity savings would be made to generate the $1,775,000 a year that the cost-of-living raises are expected to cost. Mr. Feinstein shuffled through a sheaf of papers several times before Mr. Christian handed him the list, which included improved work schedules for skilled tradesmen, an increased number of workorder tickets and better inventory control. The authority pledged to reduca the cost of turning over vacant apartments and to improve procedures for income review.

However, both men said that the sav-Ings would produce "clearly visible" money. "If we can't meet them, that would mean that the cost of living could not be paid," Mr. Christian said. "That's right," Mr. Feinstein said. Under the agreement, the workers, in-cluding all of the automitty bud solver

New York Sets Rules of House In Legal Games

B3

By FARNSWORTH FOWLE

The house rules in New York State or legally conducted games of chance for the benefit of religious, charitable and certain nonprofit organizations such as veterans groups were promulgated yes-terday by the State Racing and Wagering Board.

In two respects they differ from the "Las Vegas Nights" constitutional amendment and laws enacted in August: only scrip may be used, and the prizes must be paid off at the end of each session. Richard F. Corbisiero Jr., the board's director of wagering systems, explained that this was intended to insure that the charity or other organization conducting the games made a profit before individu-al winners received their cash.

The authorized games are craps, roulette, money wheel, hazard, blackjack, big aix, chuck-a-luck, under and over seven, and beat the dealer.

Under the lsw, no single prize may exceed $100 for any one type of game, and no one type of game at any one session may offer an aggregate of more than $1,000 in urizes. No organization may conduct more than 12 Las Vegas Nights a year.

$10 Limit on Scrip Bet

Under the regulations effective tomor-row in villages, towns and cities that have chosed to permit wagering games, no single bet in scrip may exceed $10. Scrip will be aold at 10 units to the dollar. The scrip used must be marked not only with the organization's name, state identification number and date of the llcense period within which it is to be used, but also with the name of the particular proceeds.

New York City voters decided in November to authorize Las Vegas Nights. The City Consumer Affairs Department, which oversees legalized bingo, will bava similar responsibility for the games of chance under the law.

Elinor Guggenheimer, its director, said that Feb. 1 was still the target date for legal Las Vegas Nights in New York City. She praised the new regulations as "enor-mously creative and brilliant" in that they made "the best of an extremely dif-ficult job."

She renewed her criticism of the state law, not the regulations, as unrealistic in some respects. She said that some pro-posed amendments had been drafted and were currently under consideration in the Corporation Counsel's office. Mrs. Guggenheimer has said she would like to see higher ceilings on winnings and a modification on requirements that the games be conducted on the premises of the organization itself. She explained that may charities would be to direct. that many charitles would be at a disad-vantaga unless they could use premises such as major hotels for their eveoings. She also questioned the rule that the games could be run only by actual mem-bers of the charitable group without pay preferring a system of licensing qualified professional operators. She said some synagogues bad received "strange inquiries" from persons seeking member-ship and offering to run their Las Vegas

"In a word," be said, "if we, the heir-archical church, have been slow in articulating it, we now joyously say loud and clear to you divorced, separated and re-married Catholics: Thanks for your patience, thanks for your understanding, thanks for your perserverance." The Rev. Edgar Holden, the director of the archdiocesan Ministry to Divorce Catholics said in an interview that tha Newark Archdiocese was "way out front in the relatively new movement to bring divorced Cetholics back into the fold.

Church teaching does not recognize divorce and has upheld tha view that Roman Catholics who remarry after a civil divorce are not eligible to receive the sacraments.

Efforts Strengthened

But as the divorce rate among Catholics has risen, stronger efforts to win recogni-tion and admission to the sacraments have steadily mounted. One out of three marriages in the Newark Archdiocese ends in divorce.

A "Call to Action" conference of bishops' priests and laity in Detroit last October urged the American Church hierarchy to promote greater support and spiritual service to Catholics who ware separated, divorced or remerried.

Book That Rose Never Finished Describes His Effect in Politics

By A. H. RASKIN

Senator Jacob K. Javits and Representative Bella S. Abzug outside the Metropolitan Synagogue after attending services for Alex Rose yesterday.

Governor Carey told the mourners at Alex Rose's funeral yesterday that ha and all the other public officials whom the Liberal Party chief had belped to elect were living chapters in the book about politics that Mr. Rose had started to write before his fatal illness.

Some of the episodes that the unionist-politician had intended to put in that book, now never to be published, can be recounted in his own words, as told to this reporter.

One involves his role in convincing Mayor Robert F. Wagner that he should stand and fight after the city's Demo-cratic Party county leaders had decided cratic Party county leaders had decided to purge him in 1961 by throwing their support to State Comptroller Arthur Levitt for Mayor. "When the organ-ization leaders decided to make Wag-ner the fall guy by putting out Levitt as a front, I visited Gracie Mansion and found the Mayor very dejected. I told him: Bob, you don't have to die unless you want to. You can win as a new Wagner fighting tha bosses in your own party." "I advised him to pick some skilled technicians as running mates and he

"What's happening in New York City is important to us here in Florida. After all, we fly more people in and out of New York than any other airline. So we rely on The Times to tell us how New Yorkers live, what they're doing and what's on their minds.

"Of course, The Times is an accurate social barometer for the entire nation, not just New York City. It's an essential management tool for a service business like ours. "Another thing, I like to see our ads where I know other businessmen see them. In The New York Times.

We are present at the fall of Troy, as witnesses and as helpless participants, swept up by the melee. The words are in a barrage of alien tongues -ancient Greek, Latin, African and Asian dialects -but the events, communicated through sound, action, emotion and music, are as close to us as contemporary wars. The director Andrej Serhan, together with Elizabeth Swados as composer, has blasted his way into the heart of "The Trojan Women."

"The Trojan Women" is the most striking part of "Fragments of a Trilogy"-freely based on throbbing musical scores."

"Fragments of a Trilogy" is a rare theatrical event, one that has thrilled audiences throughout Europe as well as at La Mama during its various engagements. Only 300 people can fit into the Annex at any one time, but audiences of up to 3,500 a night have acclaimed the work on tour.

"We've done The Trojan Women' for about 500 performances in 60 different cities," the Rumanian-horn director said this week. "We've done it in ruins, exhibition halls, amphitheaters, in proscenium theaters and in France on the shore of the Atlantic, with a real hoat going out after sunset, and it ended with the mon"—and it was played without artificial light. "There was such an emotional response from the audience.

in the process. "The Trojan Women' deals with the theme of imprisonment," he said, "the imprisonment of a whole civilization." In contrast, "Electra" and "Medea" deal with "the theme of the individual, of families." As a "collective concern," "The Trojan Women" is more directly iovolved with the audience. But, be said, the environmental aspects of the production are less important than the sounds. The director's primary interest is "what solinds. The director's primary interest is "what communicates to us—and at what level—when language is lost." The sounds—voice and music— become the language of the plays. Though Mr. Serban is best known for Greek tragedy, that is not the only kind of play he has done. In fact, his next assignment is the direct antithesis of the "trilngy." ELLY STONE'S 'TIGER'

Elly Stone, who enjoyed a longrunning Off Broadway success in "Jacques Brel Is Alive and Well and Living in Paris," is downtown again in previews of a new show. The singer can be seen tonight at 8 P.M. in "The can be seen tonight at 5 r.W. in The Cockeyed Tiger" (opening Jan. 13), a musical by Eric Blau, one of the cre-ators of "Jacques Brel." This time, Miss Stone portrays the chanteuse Lilly Marlene Littledea, who made a name for herself in the 1920's. "The Cockeyed Tiger" was the name of Miss Littleflea's feline mascot, reportedly a gift from Mao Tse-tung. In honor of the beast, free tiger's milk will be served, and in honor of this festive night, champagne will also be served oo the house. At the Astor Place Theater, 434 Lafayette Street. Tickets are $7.50 and $8.50. Phone 254-4370 for reservations.

A VOYAGE TO MARS

Were you hoping to go away over the holidays? You can take a little excursion this afternoon at Long Island's Vanderbilt Planetarium - a simulated trip to Mars. In the show, "Mars - The Search Begins," you'll "travel" the entire route, from blastoff to landing, in the Viking spaceship, which touched down on Mars last July. Once on the planet's surface, you will explore craters, volcances and other recent discoveries. And you can take a look back at Earth, which appears as a greenishblue speck in the sky. Reserved seats at the planetarium, 180 Little Neck Road in Centerport, are recommended and are held until 20 minutes before the show starts at 1 P.M. Call (S16) 757-7501. The trip costs 75 cents. And while you're there, you can stay for the planetarium's holiday show, "The Skies of Christmas," at 2, 3 and 4 P.M. (A separate admission charge: $1.50 for adults, $1 for children 6 to 12 and 75 cents for the elderly.) To reach the planetarium take the Long Island Expressway to Exit 49 north, then Route 25A east to Centerport, turn left onto Little Neck, Road and follow it to the end.

MAKING 1976 DISAPPEAR

First, you see an empty black top. hat. Then, abracadabra, a furry little rabbit jumps out. It's all done by . magic - the specialty of the Magic Towne House, where professional magicians show off their bags of tricks every weekend. This afternoon, the Towne House, 1026 Third Avenue (at 61st Street), will feature shows for children at 1, 2:30 and 4 P.M. Admis-sion is $2.50, and reservations are required. Phone 752-1165. Adults are welcome, too, but must be accompanied by children. Tonight, there will be a New Year's Eve celebration for grownups, starting at 8:30. In addition to the regular "close-up" magic show, with the audience seated on graduated levels around a large table, there will be a stage show starring magicians. Reservations are recommended. New Year's Eve admission is $10 and includes all you can eat from a hot-and-cold buffet.

NOSTALGIA AT ANCRAM

Has the new year crept up on you too quickly? You can turn the clock back—way back—with a visit to the Victorian Ancram Restoration, about 100 miles north of New York City. In the Opera House, the town's main attraction, the Spiffy Music Hall quar-tet will put on a show for nostalgia buffs on Saturday at 8:30 P.M. and Sunday at 2:30 P.M. The song-anddance group presents musical delights spanning 80 years—from music-hall tunes of the 1890's up to Cole Porter, Rodgers and Hart and Jacques Brel.

Tickets are $6.95 and $9.95. Before the show, visitors can eat in the mirrored Tea Room at Oliver House, the village inn that was huilt in 1898, and can explore other working sights. of the restoration, including Simons General Store, For Opera House tick-ets and meal or lodging reservations, call (518) 329-1166. THE NEW YORK TIMES, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1975

IDDLER ON THE ROOF" opened last Tuesday night, and while it was understood that the opening would belong to Zero Mostel, in a real way it belonged to Jerome Robhins, too. The new production of "Fiddler" faithfully repro-duced Mr. Robbins's original direction and choreogra-phy, and this was a reminder that although Mr. Rob-bins now spends most of his time at the New York bins now spends most of his time at the New York City Ballet, he is still Broadway's resident genius of the musical theater. Here is Mr. Robbins, talking about "Fiddler," and about why he is not on Broad-way more often:

"I saw this 'Fiddler' in Boston, and I was very proud. It has a subject that's very strong, that's-what's the word?---uhiversal. Did you like the show? Did you like the script? The other shows that come along and are offered to ma just aren't that good. I'm not against doing shows on Broadway. I'm a great fan of 'Chorus Line,' for iostance But to do a show now-I'd have to inaugurate it myself."

Alet McCowen, who was the first Martin Dysart in "Equus," appearing in the drama when it opened at the National Theater of Britain in 1973, will re-sume the role on Broadway. Mr. McCowen will re-place Anthony Perkins for four weeks, beginning Feb. 15, while Mr. Perkins goes off to make a movie of "Winter Kills," the Richard Condon novel. Mr. McCowen was last here in "The Misanthrope" in 1975, and before that he was in "After the Rain." "The Philanthropist" and "Hadrian VII," for which he won a Tony. he won a Tony.

So, what do you say to a legend? You say, "Hi, Molly," or, "Helio, Miss Picon." Once, Molly Picon Molty," or, "Heio, Miss Picon." Once, Molty Picon was the queen of Second Avenue, and when she would show up at Moskowitz & Lupowitz with say, Flo Ziegfeld and Billie Burke, the proprietors would ignore the impresario and his wife and fall all over her. Such adulation you do not see nowadays, but for Miss Picon it happened all the time. "I feel like a museum piece," sha says now, although she is better looking than that, and tomorrow night she and Hans Conried open at the Morosco in a new play. It is "Something Old, Something New," and it is about two older people who want to get married. The other day, Miss Picon talked about this and other things at Sardi's. Miss Picon lives on East 18th Street; Sardi's is on West 44th Street, Miss Picon had walked there.

"I was born on Broome Street in 1898, and I've become very vain about my age," Miss Picon said. "Why not? People are still buying what I'm selling. "Why not? People are still buying what I'm selling. The Yiddish theater is gone, hut once it was very profitable and joyous. In those days the Broadway producers would come to us. Once, they made an offer I couldn't refuse—the Palace at $3,500 a week. I translated my Yiddish songs into English and said I'd sing them. They told me not to use my hands: so, I held them in hack of me and sang. I was held over four weeks. All my audience from downtown came uptown to hear me."

Miss Picon has been on Broadway since then, even though, she said, she has never been sent enough scripts that she liked. She said this was because the writers didn't know she could speak English without an accent. Miss Picen said that when she first met Helen Hayes, she had told her that sometimes she was known as the "Yiddish Helen Hayes." She said that Miss Hayes had told her that sometimes she was known as the "shiksa Molly Picon."

The New Federal Theater is about to do "Divine Comedy," which is by Owen Dodson, and was first done at Yale in 1938. Mr. Dodson, who may be the dean of black drama, based the play with gospel music on the life and times of the late Father Divine. Performances, at the Henry Street Settlement's Henry Street Playhouse on Grand Street, are from Jan. 13 through Jan. 23, and one of the good things about them is that they are free. For information, call 766-9334

"Poor Murderer," which opened Oct. 20, will close Sunday. It was an ambitious, ensemble production, the last play that Kermit Bloomgarden was associat-ed with and the first play in which Maria Schell appeared on Broadway. Here is Miss Schell, talking about her dehut and her future:

"It has been a wonderful experience—my first time acting on stage in English. To find out I could func-tion on a stage in English is wonderful, The stage for me is like breathing in, so that later I can breathe out. I want to do one more play here. In "The Trip Back Down," Mr. Cullum plays Bol Horvath, a stock-car driver from Mansfield, Ol whn comes home to a broken marriage after eight-year absence. Philip Rose is tha producer, Terry Schreiber is the director, and already if been sold as a movie, which Paul Newman is posed to direct.

1 It is possible that Alan Schneider is now the amhitious man in theater. Joe Papp is amhi but his amhition goes in all directions, and are times it is hard to know where he will come it next. Mr. Schneider is more single-minded. The brated director has succeeded John H. the head of drama at the Juilliard School, an all goes well he knows exactly what he will there. "The American theater can change," he a "This place can change it."

Mr. Schneider said he had taken the job at Juill because it was a place where the students did Beci-one night and Wycherley the next. He said t the British played Shakespeare well because the also played Pinter, and that they played Pinter & because they also played Shakespeare. He said f. American actors ought to do no less.

"The Actors Studio muffed it," he said. "It chang films, not the theater. Our actors are going to chan tha theater. They'll play the classics well enoug so that we won't have to import talent. Our probl-is getting people to pay attention to Juilliard. We a national school, hut what people don't know that we have a drama school—us."

Then Mr. Schneider said that in years past would sit in Howard Johnson's with Rod, Judy, Kim, Ben and others (you should be able to go the last names) and talk about how they wi change the American theater. (Eli, for one, he's was always going to do Iago.) Mr. Schneider is that somehow they had gotten diverted.

"But 20 years from now," he said, "there be a kid from Juilliard and he'll be as good as Man ever was. He'll change the American theater." • •

Goose rhyme. Nine hundred twentyfive pages long, it runs to some half-million words of solid text. And it is not a book of easy access. Critics, though they consider it Miss Stein's magnum opus, have spoken of its "fugal repetitions," "the matvelous meadows of her monotone," "its in-sisteot and repetitive style." Alice B. Tokias, Miss Stein's good friend and fidus Achates, called it "her thousand-page book," and Gertrude, herself, in a rare moment of contrition, thought of pruning it.

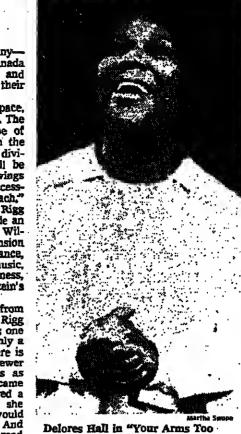

The novel, written between 1906 and 1911 but not published until 1925, is a history of the Stain family, with the author the prototype of one of the characters, Martha Hersland, It is also, by extension, a history of America. In the telling, however, the book ignores conventional fictional devices: plot, narrative continuity, detailed settings. Instead, Miss Stein tried to create "a continuous present," in the words of the poet John Malcolm Brinnin, her biographer. "Immediacy," he wrote, "wes the first and final thing to achieve," and he cites Miss Stein's own remark, "The conception forming around me was a continual present." Despite its 50-hour duration, it is that immediacy that the reading at the Paula Cooper provides. Miss Rigg said. "It's possible to see degrees of prog-ress not observable in shorter time. In listeniog and reading aloud, one becomes aware of tiny variations, shifts of emphasis and detail." For those who are not likely to plow through it on their owo, the reading provides a way of encompassing the book.

It all began three years ago when four women - Anna Lockwood and, Ruth Anderson, composers, Alison Knowles, an artist, and Miss Rigg, a law student who formerly managed the Merce Cunningham Dance Company heard about such a reading in Canada by Emmett Williams, the poet and artist, and decided to hold one of their own.

The first took place at Artists Space, the second last year at the gallery. The gallery is a large storefront type of showplace, the inside visible from the street. This year, as an unplanned dividend, visitors to the reading will be able to study the working drawings Robert Wilson created for the success-ful new opera "Einstein on the Beach," with music by Philip Glass. Miss Rigg thought the drawings would provide an appropriate setting because Mr. Wilson's works also demand a suspension of the usual time-scale of performance, and also hecause Mr. Glass's music, in its aural range and repetitiveness, has much in common with Miss Stein's prose.

Has anyone ever stayed through from beginning to end? Not quite, Miss Rigg said, although last year she recalls one young man who ducked out for only a couple of hours and returned. There is scarcely a time when there are fewer than six listeners and sometimes as than six listeners and sometimes as many as a hundred. One woman came and stayed so long she was offered a cup of tea. The woman said no, she had brought her own tea and would be grateful for a cup of hot water. And then she explained: "I love being read to. I decided to fast this weekend any-way. It's the perfect place to be."

New Face: Delores Hall, Fervent Star

Every night at the Lyceum Theater a young woman called Delores Hall stops the show dead. Dead! It is a pretty lively dead, but it is dead. You hear about this on Broadway, but very rarely encounter it. A performer taking a show, twisting it around a little finger, smiling, and stopping. While the audience applauds. And applauds. The show, "Your Arms Too Short to Box With God," has been devised and directed by Vinette Carroll, and I recommend it to you wholeheartedly. This is a sort of gospel show, and it is absolutely lovely. It makes your head sing, and it makes your soul a little hit warmer.

But apart from the show itself—and, the whole group is handsomely talented —Miss Hall really is a standout. She sings as if her heart depended upoo it, which is extraordinarly rare. Most, singers give only a geotle part of them-selves. Miss Hall goes to the bottom line, and shouts out, with beautiful hlues coloring, where she is as a person. This very involved and passionate hlack singer-actress was born in Kansas City. Her background is gospel singing. Her mother is a minister of the Church of God and Christ, and her uncle is a bishop. On most Sundays, before the play's matioee, you can hear Miss Hall at the Kelly Temple Church of God in Christ at 10 East 130th Street.

130th Street,

Miss Hall says that "everything that came to me came from God." You hear her, and you hear the specially precise fervor of a Mahalia Jackson. Yet her theater debut was oot precisely that expected of a good churchperson. She first appeared on stage in Los Angeles in "Hair," having gone directly from a gospel group into a "Hair" audition. Miss Hall has heep with "Your Arms Too Short to Box With God" since November of 1975, touring in Wash-ington, Chicago and Philadelphia before coming on to New York. Her director, Miss Carroll, has very much determined her present performance, which she happily acknowledges.

It is curious. Miss Hall has been in many Broadway musicals, and many pf them have been admirable. Yet here she seems to have an audience in the palm of her voice. And it is a great voice. It thrums with emotion; it beats with a certain passion. There are many good things going for this show. It has a radiance, an oldtime gospel fervor that has made Alvin. time gospel fervor that has made Alvin Ailey's "Revelations" the incredible hit it is. But it also does something for Miss Hall, who is a strange star, in a completely ensemble show. Miss Car-roll does not really want stars, except in a properly modulated skyscape. And yet Miss Hall is a star, and glitters with a sweet womanliness that lights up the show. And not only lights it up the show. And not only lights it up. But stops it!

And Mr. Dunlop's staging, his feel for movement, his engagement with the stage, were consistently impressive. But now the show appears peculiarly

Why are so many modern—or so-distant modern — musicals hased on hiblical themes? This "Joseph" makes so many of its points—those such as It makes—with a semi-mocking attitude to its subject. It takes Joseph, gives him a plaintive voice, surrounds him with the bloe-jeaned cohorts and an abundance of disco gnosp dancing abundance of disco, go-go dancing. I can see, at least in part, what I liked in Londoo. The original decor by Nadine Baylis, a disk stage with glam-orous accountrements, and the costumes all had a special style. C8 THE NEW YORK TIMES, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1976 Memphis Slim Returns

By RONALD SMOTHERS

Contraction of the second second

In 1939, Peter Chatman, a lanky 6 port 4 inch blues planist, composer and singer from Memphis, arrived in Chica-go to break into the recording business. He had tried the same thing some years earlier, but bad luck and the lack of a, winter coat forced him to hop a freight back home. This time be had afready made a successful record of Beer Drinking Woman," and he was ch the verge of moving on to another record company that had made a better offer. But there was a legal problem arising from one company's poaching on another's talent.

A white producer agent with some flare for packaging and marketing the blues miom for rural and urban blacks decided to get around that problem by changing the performer's name. He noted that the bluesman was tall and skinny and was from Memphis.

"He said to me, "We're gonna call ypu Memphis Slim, boy," recalled an older, secure and established Peter Chatman, who can laugh at and ap-preciate the irony of how and why he got his professional name.

No Longer Slim

He's no longer slim, and it's been a long time since he has been anywhere near those Beale Street clubs in Memphis where he started appearing when he was 16 years old For the last 16 years Memphis Slim has been a self-de-scribed "blues missionary," living in France and successfully performing his and other artists' hlues compositions in Europe, Africa and Australia.

And now Memphis Slim is back in the United States to perform for the first time since the 1966 Monterey Jazz Festival. He will be appearing tonight

only for the 10:30 P.M. New Year's Eve performance. Call 475-5120.) During his time in Europe he has maintained his affection for the classic piano-accompanied blues that were popular in Chicago in the 1940's. But his fellow bluesmen note that he has his fellow bluesmen note that he has a tremendous range of blues styles. "He can do it all," said Muddy Wa-ters, the Chicago bluesman from Mis-sissippi and a contemporary of Mem-phis Slim. "He can do the gut-bucket, country style like 1 do, or he can do the smooth style, the city style."

Slim's repertory also includes some classic barrelhouse plano blues with their hard-driving riffs, as well as some boogie-woogie instrumentals. Perhaps his best-known composition is "Every Day I Have the Blues," a 1946 song popularized by Count Basie and the jazz vocalists Joe Williams and Al Hibhler.

Evolution of the Bines

In fact, said Slim in an Interview, he likes to try to make his perform-ances show "the evolution of the blues." He'll talk some in those performances about blues artists or the origin of a particular song or explain the slang of lyrics that in one quick image tell a complete story. But he will offer no ponderous definitions of the blues because he believes the world doesn't need yet another definition of the music that "is like mother earth and the thing from which all American music comes.

music comes." "It's all the same-rock jazz, pop. The names don't mean a thing because they're just a commercial label put on when people want something new," Memphis Slim said, "It's what it always was even before they called it the blues. My grandmother used to catch me bumming and singing my music, and she called it the reaks' because it's the truth."

He started his musical career at 5 years old, playing guitar along with his father, also named Peter Chatman, who had a group called the Washboard Band. Eventually he began to mimic his father's plano player, the fine blues musician Roosevelt Sykes, until he said his playing was indistinguishable from that of the St. Louis-born Sykes. This was Memphis Slim's ticket to jobs in the "chitim clubs" of Beale Street, where he got "two half pints and $1.25 a night" for playing.

Songs He Has Forgotten

But Memphis Slim said he was always vagabond of sorts, "hopping freights and hoboing around—a good thing if you can know when to get out of it."
 From this traveling he got the experi-ences for the 300 or so songs he wrote. that are registered with a French pub-lishing company, and countless others made up on the spot and that he has since forgotten.

After arriving in Chicago, be got a job as piano player with Big Bill Broonzy's Memphis Five. Broonzy was the reigning king of Chicago blues music in the 1940's and was responsible music in the 1940's and was responsible for the first European tours by an American hlues group some years later. In 1946, Slim started his own group, the House Rockers, and then formed a continuing team with the singer-composer Willie Dixon. They recorded and worked together in this country off and on through the 50's. "Then we decided to leave," Mr. Dixon recalled. "We were big names here, but we weren't raising no stud.

here, but we weren't raising no sind, and the most we could get was week-end jobs at $20 or so a night."

Memphis Slim at the Village Gate No ponderous definitions of the blues

They first went to Israel in 1959 and from there to Britain and then France. where they found wide acceptance. Among their following, Mr. Dixon said, were some English youths who eventu-ally formed a group called the Rolling

"I don't think anything I've done. would have been possible if I had stayed here," said Slim, who now owns his fourth Rolls-Royce in 10 years, lives in his own house in Fontenay le Fleury outside of Paris, with oversize plano keys for steps and a swimming pool; and maintains an apartment in Paris.

Opera: Leinsdorf Conducts 'Salome'

By RAYMOND ERICSON

HE EXCITEMENT in Wednesday night's performance of "Salome" at the Metropolitan Opera was mainly in the or-chestra pit. Erich Leinsdorf, conducting with the company for tha first time since 1973-74, unleashed all the power in the Richard Strauss score without sacrificing any of the meticulous control for which he is famous.

The orchestra played its very best for him. Beginning quietly enough, the music was given its full eloquence early on. The emotional momentum was unflegging mitil the final chords. The Met was obviously fortunate in having Mr. Leinsdorf back

"Salome," being revived after an absence of three years from the Met's repertory, again had Grace Melzia Bumbry in the title role and Ragnar Ulfung as Herod. Several of the other parts were newly cast, however, and in one of the small roles, that of the Fourth Jew, Ernesto Gesco mada his debut. Miss Bumbry's Salome is something

C10 Film: 'Frida Kahlo,' A Mexican Portrait

By VINCENT CANBY

HE LIFE AND DEATH of Frida Kahlo," which is slightly less than half of the new program at the Film Forum, is an exquisite film of its kind. It's a short, moving, vivid recollection of the life and work of the woman who was Diego Rivera's third wife (as well as his fourth), a painter being recognized in her own right—though she remains largely un-known outside her native Mexico—a heing haunted by illness from childhood until she died in 1954 at the age of 44.

The film is the work of Karen and David Crommie, the San Francisco film makers who made the movie 10 years ago, although it is only now receiving its well-deserved New York premiere. It opened yesterday at the Film For-um on a bill with "Chulas Fronteras,"

Les Blank's 58-minute documentary on Mexican-American music. The program will be seen tonight, tomorrow and Sunday nights at 7:30 o'clock, and at the same time next week, Thursday through Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Crommie evoke Miss Kahlo'a life through still photographs, pictures of her paintings and, on the soundtrack, the recorded recollections of people who knew her in Mexico and this country. The Crommies' achievement is to have produced such an emo-tionally charged film at such a far remove in time from their subject, which is testimooy, I suspect, not only to their taste and talent as film makers, but also to the vitality of Miss Kahlo and her work.

The woman they recall had polio as a child and then in her early teens was in an automobile accident in which her back was broken in two places. For the rest of her life, she was in and out of hospitals for operations that never were successful and that, at the end, after the amputation of one leg, left her an invalid unable to paint.

- She was as a friend remembers and as we see in photographs and self-por-iraits, "almost beautiful," with fine, dark eyes and what appears to be "a single eyebrow" that passed from one side of her face to the other with vir-fually no hreak. After meeting Rivera when she was 14 years old, she told a friend that more than anything else the wanted to have his child. At 19 she married him though he was more than 40, and began a life that seems to have been a classic blend of ectasy and pain. The pain was emotional as well as physical Rivera, according to these old friends and associates, was a monster and an egomaniac, and though he en-couraged her painting, he never ac-knowledged her needs. In 1939 they were divorced, only to remarry a year later.

While Rivera was out decorating oblic buildings with huge panoramas of the great new Communist society, she was creating small, fantastic paint-ings of her life, using brilliant, raw colors and realistic hut contradictory images of a kind that earned her a repntation as a Surrealist, though critics debate that point.

Having never seen any of her work except in this film, I've no idea where to place it. Within the film, though, these sometimes nightmarish and hrutal self-portraits, justaposed with photo-graphs of the elegant, handsome wom-an who painted them, help to create a memorable personality witty, staunch, full of benign feelings and merciless self-appraisal.

"The Life and Death of Frida Kalho" runs only 40 minutes, but it is more affecting than most features. "Chulas Fronteras," directed by Mr. Blank, Is at heart solemnly picturesque, though the Mex-Tex music it studies is lively enough. Mr. Blank's approach is sinenough. Mr. Blank's approach is sin-cerely appreciative and just a bit con-descending, like that of the anthropolo-gist who refuses to panic even as his subjects prepare to put him in a kettle of boiling chicken stock.

Breakfast in Bed? No Bother Life

Room service at home, if only on Sunday mornings, is one of the newer and more civilized innovations around town.

Breakfast in Bed is the creation of the young and energetic Vera Heller who, if called 24 hours in advance, will have someone on your doorstep, somewhat breathless and almost exactly at the appointed hour, bearing a stylish continental breakfast completely intact. What she sends is a pretty round Chinese wicker basket lined with a red and white gingham checked cloth, holding five croissants, two pieces of fruit, three pats of butter, two portion packs of strawberry jam and orange marmalade from Switzerland, two Darjeeling or Chinese colong tes bags, two envelopes of Swiss instant coffee, cubes of sugar and a few paper naphing. The recipient does the rest and that includes heating the croissants, making the tee or coffee, then climbing back into bed to enjoy it all.

Only a gastronomic nit-picker might note that the flaky croissants would have been even better if made with more butter and salt, and that three pats of butter were not quite enough for the otherwise generous contents, which is more than enough for the two persons specified.

In general, however, it was thoroughgoing delight, and the $5.95 charge did not seem unreasonable considering the service and that one gets to keep both basket and checkered nap-

Miss Heiler, who came to this coun-try from Rumania 11 years ago, has always been interested in cooking, most especially the dishes of Hungary and France, and she hopes that this service is a first step toward turning that interest into a profession.

Mime: 'Chip Off Old Munk' For the Young

"A Chip off the Old Munk" is an amusing children's entertainment that the Richard Morse Mime Theater is presenting through Sunday at St. John's Episcopal Church at 224 Waverly Place. Under its quietly friendly influence, the lion does not quite lie down with the lamb, but natural antagonists like the sherman and the fish leam to fiv with each other. The fisherman, Tony Curry, winces at the baiting of a hook betraying his tender heart as the fish swims happily around. Rase Allen is delightful as she crouches and waggles fin-like fingers fore and aft before taking the hook. She flops and tosses very convincingly when landed, and the fisherman is intimidated into giving her artificial respiration and tossing her back. They waved goodbye and, presumably, the fisherman hung up his bne forever.

She gave the snake equivaleot of a laugh and he stuck his tongue out angrily at her. She has a wooderful feel for animal imitations and he is at his best while moving in some of the longer-phrased episodes, such as "A Whiter Fantasy." In the finale, everything from animal acts to aerialists was included, and the atmosphere of danger and pseudodanger was very nicely presented. An ending parade was led by the clown, Lee Copenhaber, who hrought down the house hy being hit in the face with pies — does it ever fail? — and then passed out halloons to all in the audience. The performance is geared to the limited attentioo span of little ones and moves along at a sprightly pace. Don McDonAGH

Chelsea Center to Stage 'Crazy Locomotive'

The Chelsea Theater Center will present the English language premlere of "The Crazy Locomotive," a comedy by the Polish writer-painter-philosopher Stanislaw Witzkiewicz, at the Brooklyn Academy of Music from Jan. 18 through Jan. 3D and from Feb. 2 through Feb. 13 at Manhattan's Theater Four.

Four. The script was translated by Daniel Gerould and C. S. Durer. The play, which is being directed by Des McAnnoff, will be staged like a 1930's gangster movie. Douglas Schmidt has designed the scenery, depicting a moving locomotive. Mr. Witzkiewicz was a major partici-pant io the European avant-garde movement before he committed suicide in 1939. The Chelsea presented another of his plays, "The Water Hen," during fts 1971-72 season. "The Crazy Locomotive" is the Chelsea's third offering of the season. The cast includes Peter Bartlett, Joseph Palmieri, Glenn Close, Garnett Smith, Mark Hampton and Lin Shave.

classes from A.D. 1200 to 1521, in what is called the Late Post Classic period, the era just before the Spanish con-guest of Mexico.

Despite the destruction wrought by the European conquerors, thousands of Aztec idols and the written descrip-tions of their meanings survive, Never-theless, exhibitions of such work have beeo relatively rare, especially in re-cent years when public museums and private collectors concentrated more on earlier pre-Columhian cultures. Of the more than 7D examples of such Aztec stooe statuary displayed at this gallery, most have been hidden from public view in the basements and storage rooms of New York City mu-seums. The exhibition is aimed at reacseums. The exhibition is aimed at reac-quainting the public with the art of Mexico's pre-Hispanic civilization. It was organized by Esther Pasztory, an associate professor of art history and archeology at Columbia University, with the assistance of Gordon Ekholm of the American Museum of Natural History, Anna Roosevelt of the Museum of the American Indian, Michael Kan of the Brooklyn Museum and Julie Jones of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the lending institutions. Creation and Destruction

The Aztec works here were in most cases acquired in Mexico in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. But the recent scholarship redefining reasons for their creation, use and destruction will be new to many amateur archeologists and history buffs. The knowledge of the Aztec people and society is cap-sulized for viewers in a well-designed catalogue and in the wall labels and individual descriptions of each stone figure, calendar stone and liturgical object. What is explained here, for example, is why the Aztecs seemed to dwell on death and the horrors of life, relishing what is terrifying and incorporating fear into their religious rites. For one thing, the Aztecs never felt they achieved what the Toltecs before them had, and they were thus intimidated and self-conscious. They lashed out with fear, and their insistence that they were doomed was never eased.

What resulted were gods that add up to a rogues' gallery of grimacing faces—even the agricultural deities were stern and sullen, and the wind gods, whose breath swept the ground and ushered in the rains, were encum-bered by horrendous mouth masks that give them duckbills or monkey or crocodile snouts. Gods displayed here with fantastic headdresses shaped like corn, temples, huns with tassels or feathers and flowers were joyless, even male deitles

OP-10 LISTS require no justification. The following is a list of the 10 best long-play-ing pop records of 1976. What that means is, first, pop-rock-fulk-country-soul of the t likely to make the main sales charts. It does include classical, jazz, purist folk or anything a, however worthy, that didn't at least have a it at commercial success.

And State ARAMA

That hardly means that these were the most pular records of 1976; No. 2 nn my list sold dly at all. What it means is that within those ad outlines, these were the records I enjoyed st this year. They are the records that moved most and held up best on repeated hearings.

host and held up best on repeated hearings. bere has been no attempt to include at least record in each of the principal pop sub-genres. re is no disco record this year, for instance, al-igh a couple of Stevie Wonder's songs could ceivably be danced to in a discn. There are also greatest-hits packages, even when a lot of the cerial on such packages hadn't been released e before, as with "Abba's Greatest Hits."

maily, some almost-but-not-quites. First of all . Inally, some almost-but-not-quites. First of all, 5. Il on the list, Peter Allen's "Taught by Ex-rts." Also, in no particular order, the Rolling mes's "Black and Blue." "Has Moicy!" with the holy Modal Rounders and assorted allies, Jeff .k's "Wired," Rod Stewart's "A Night on the wn," Aerosmith's "Rocks" and Paul McCartney's "ings Over America" compendium.

• • • 1. Stevie Wonder's "Songs in the Key of Life" amla T13-34062). No question about the top spot. . Wonder's two LP's and a bonus 45 constitute overflowing collection of musical inspiration, nultaneously the most important and the most tertaining abum of the year. And that combina-a is what great popular art is all about.

"Anna and Kate McGarrigie" (Warner Brothers 5 2862). The McGarrigle sisters are Canadian, hough Kate, who is married to Loudon Wain-right 3d, lives in New Ynrk State. This record as recorded last year and released early this year id went nowhere, partly because Kate's preg-incy prevented a tour. But their record got crical raves, and the sisters' live performances later the year won rapture in England. They have a w album due soon and should tour in America hen it is released, so maybe they'll catch on comercially at last. In the meantime this folkish but disk was the most charming, purely beauti-1 and sentimentally moving record of 1976.

3. Joni Mitchell's "Hejira" (Asylum 7E-1087). This may not be as entertaining as it is elevating.

but as a serious, haunting piece of work, it knows few equals in pop music. And for all its many other beauties, it has one song, "Amelia," that will in-sure it a place in pop-music history. Miss Mitchell is an acquired taste for some, but there is no better form than this record in which th acquire it.

4. Linda Ronstadt's "Hasten Down the Wind" (Asylum 7E-1072). Miss Ronstadt is the most commercially successful woman performer in music at the moment, and this haunting collection hasn't hurt ber status any. Nearly everybody responds to the sheer impact of her huge, viorant low soprano. Some people find her reliance on baliads a little mopey and ber singing in general too foursquare and dutiful; for them the recent greatest hits col-lection is probably a better buy. But this album is a hetter guide to Miss Ronstadt's sensibility, with its sad, evocative concentration on the mysteries of love.

5. Graham Parker's "Howlin' Wind" (Mercury SRM-1-1095). Mr. Parker is the white rhythm-andblues-revival artist of the year. His music is cast in the mold of the early Rolling Stones, with his own gritty vocals and his band's irresistibity infectious rocking, Bur Mr. Parker is no slavish nostalgist, and his songs not only freshen the idiom with inventive twists but also concern themselves

thematically with ideas far beyond early rhythm and blues staples. 6. Bob Marley and the Wailers "Live" (LL.P.S. 9376). Some find this disk too turgid and rockoriented for reggae. But it captures the bypnotic, trancelike state of a reggae concert superbiy, and actually the music has a tough urgency that seems compelling indeed. The rapt version of "No Wom-an, No Cry" is alone worth the price of the disk.

7. Melanie's "Photograph" (Atlantic SD 18190). Melanie is apparently so locked into her Goody Two Shoes, "Brand New Key" image that this so-phisticated, cabaret-oriented record hasn't caught on commercially. But it's still a remarkable disk, for all its unevenness and occasional miscalculations. Melanie has an amazing voice, husky and heartbroken, and her composing end phrasing are those of a major artist.

those of a major artist. 8. Bob Seger's "Night Moves" (Capitol ST-11557). Mr. Seger has been a Midwestern rock favorite for a decane, hut 1976 was the year that maybe saw the heginning of his national emergence. First, there was a well-received live album. And then came this winning studio effort, in which Mr. Seger's fervent singing (you have to go to Rod Stewart nr Paul Rongers to hear the like) is backed on side two by a lively group of session men from Muscle Shoals. Ata. The songs themselves have the secret of all great rock—they stick close to the hasics of the themes and the numical style without sounding backward-looking or derivative. 9. "The Modern Lovers." (Home of the Hits

9. "The Modern Lovers." (Home of the Hits HH-1910). Two records by Jonathan Richman and the Modern Lovers came oot in 1976, and both were delightful. This is the first, with the original band, recorded mostly in 1971 and by Warner Brothers in Los Angeles under John Cale's direc-tion. It's an amazing, bizarre record, art-punk primitivism five years before its time. Mr. Richman ic a novely item parhaos but so arresting that be is a novelty item, perhaps, but so arresting that he disarms most doubts.

10. Blue Oyster Cult'a "Ageots of Fortune" (Columbia PC-34164). Blue Oyster Cult with its conceptual pretensions, Nazi regalia and scream-ing, heavy-metal onslaughts, has always been caught awkwardly between the teen market and incrowd favoritism. This record, softer and smoother than its predecessors, isn't so much a sellout as talents of the hand without undercutting its ominous impact.

As a footnote, one might consider briefly what happened to the artists on this writer's 1975 top-10 list. Bruce Springsteen, No. 1, is locked in a painful legal struggle with his manager and has been prevented from recording a follow-up record. Parti Smith, No. 2, put out an album that didn't live up to its predecessor, although she remains a fascinating performer—and contributes to the No. 10 album on the 1976 list. Linda Ronstadt, 1975's No. 3, actually made a better album in 1976 than in 1975, but had stiffer competition at the top. in 1975, but had stiffer competition at the top. Bob Dylan, the 1975 No. 4, put out a rancous live-tour album. The Who, No. 5, didn't issue a record in 1976, nor did Neil Young, No. 6, although his joint disk with Stephen Stills had its throwaway charms. Bob Marley, No. 7, held pretty steady. The Band, No. S, spent 1976 retiring. Neither Toots and the Maytals, No. 9, nor Roxy Music, No. 10, matched their 1975 successes.

he ability of a composer-performer shift easily from one idinm or genre another has been one of the mnre able recent developments among younger composers of the avant-de. It seems in be coming along a kind of counterbalance in the alst obsessive concentration on a few sely related musical areas that charerizes some slightly older avant-de composers. The danger is that exploring all the avenues that are in to him, the composer may lose bearings.

he focus of Mr. Mahler's work ms to be his own influences and snnality, for in spite of his prosmanty, for in spite of his pro-m's extreme eclecticism, his pres-ie lent the evening a certain unity intent. He saluted John Phillip isa and Charles lves and when he ig unaccompanied, his plain-spoken asing and unaddrand used timber asing and unadorned vocal timbre led up rustic images of middle ierica.

ught of doing. Ir. Mahler's program became tedionly during its most conventional tion, a long semistatic work for or-called "illinois Sleep," which acly set several audience members to ROBERT PALMER ring.

Choreography for the Theater Miss Keen is not the first choreograpber to do industrials; among ber predecessors have been Alwin Nikolais. Nor is she the only choreographer to work with actors. Yet at present she is unique in that she is a still-active dancer consistently choreographing fur major theatrical directors. These have included Michael Kahn, John Dexter, Arvin Brown, Robert Kalfin and also John Pasquin, for Joseph Papp's production of "The Comedy of Errors."

The link between Miss Keen's work In the theater and the kind of often-ex-perimental choreography that she gives the dancers in her own company is clear. It all boils down to a sense of style. Unlike many modern-dance choreographers, she does not have a readily identifiable movement vocabulary that is her signature. Instead, she turns to the movement idiom that best serves the idea she wants to express

"I find this related to my work in the theater where you need a style of movement suitable both to the period of the production and the concept of the director." Miss Keen said. "For in-stance, I did the mime for the play-within-the-play in "Hamlet" for two directors --Arvin Brown at Long Wharf and John Dexter at the American Shakespeare Festival --- and in each case it looked totally different. Each director outlined what he wanted in terms of style.

"In my dances, when I work on a dance, I am working from an idea and I try to find what suits that idea in terms of movement and sound."

The result bas been that Miss Keen is called eclectic. One Keen dance work rarely resembles another.

Summer Camp to Juillard

"I try not to repeat," she declared. "I can go from the realistic to the ab-stract. I don't worry about one piece being consistent with another. But I want consistency as a style within a piece itself. In this way, I think theater has affected the whole way I look at style in dance."

Humor is also a key ingredient in Miss Keen's choreography, which could be attributed to her childhood, spent in Huntington, L.I., where she said, "everyone in my family had a good sense of humor, and I found 1 expressed mine through movement, not words." Miss Keen's opportunities to express herself through movement came early: Dance at summer camp. Ballet and modern-dance lessons from the age of S at the Adelphi College Children's Theater. There was further study in the Dalcroze system with Mita Rom, hallet at the School of American Ballet and Martha Graham's technique at the Juilliard Preparatory Division while she was attending Huntington High School, preparing for college.

At Radailife, inwever, she had had her moment of truth.

"I remember studying in Widener Li-brary, sneaking out to the deserted halls and dancing," she said. "It was when I wasn't dancing that I suddenly realized how important it was to me. So after my sophomore year, I transferred to Barnard to be closer to dance in New York City."

After baving graduated with a major in the history of religion, she danced with companies led by Paul Taylor, Mary Anthony, James Waring, Helen Tamiris and Dariel Nagrin. Along the way, she also obtained a Masters of Arts degree in dance from Sarah Law-rence to help her teach. "I had found that as a dancer I still had to work as a market research analyst for S2 an hour. My father tapped me on the shoulder and suggested that if I taught oance, I could get $10 an hour."

Like many dancers and choreographers, Miss Keen sees dance as an art of self-discovery. In the 1960's she was associated with the Judson Dance Theater, which spawned an avantgarde that frequently used nondancers. Today, she remarked, "I don't feel my work reflected the Judson interests. was too formalist for me; But what I liked about the Judson people was their very refreshing cross of ideas. They were not held down to one boring vocabulary." To Miss Keen, the core of her work lies in its dependence upon movement "In all my pieces," she said, "it's the movement I build upon. What I mean is you couldn't say the same in words, or io paint. It's very much a dance."

This is true, she insists, even if she uses words as in "The Last Snack." She explained: "There is a bit of erotica here in a duet, but it's part of the look I'm trying to take at commercials. With all the constaot messages on television on how to achieve perfection and have a happier sex life, there's got to be some connection between the way legal advertising plays up sex and the boom now in pornography." Rocking the New Year In at the Joffrey

It isn't only the champagne that will sy pop tonight. Over at the City Center 55th Street Theater, the Joffrey Ballet will present three ballets to rock music as its own New Year Eve's celebration, beginning at 8 P.M. The ballets are Twyla Tharp's Deuce Coupe II" to songs by the Beach Boys, Margo Sappington's "Weewis" to - commissioned score by Stanley Welden and Gerald Arpino's "Trinity" to the score of the same name by Alan Raph and Lee Holdridge, two classically trained composers who use rock elements in their work.

Choreographed in the early 1970's, each of these ballets was a hit in its dwn way. "Trinity," coming out of the flower-power and peace-vigil period, survived its own topicality because it has a strong dance pulse and a firstclass score. Although it did not have the theatrical impact of Robert Jof-frey's earlier, psychedelic and pioneerthe rock ballet, "Astarte," "Trinity" outlasted it as a ballet.

"Deuce Coupe II" is a more sophistieated and streamlined version of "Deuce Coupe," the work with which Miss Tharp first reached a large ballet audionce. The excitement that greeted both versions was generated by the freshness at Miss Tharp's treatment of the attitudes as well as music and social dances of an earlier rock culture. Rather than being contemporaneous with that generation, "Deuce Coupe" looked back upoo it.

In "Weewis," Miss Sappington dates herself as the very successful choreogrepher of "Ohl Calcutta!" The famous nude duet of that show is echoed in a body-stocking duet for lovers in the ballet, and there is a slick, show-biz tone here that andiences, more than critics, have appreciated.

Rock Ballets Waning

"Trinity" was first presented in 1970, "Weewis" in 1971, "Deuce Coupe" in 1973 and "Deuce Coupe II" two years ago. If "Deuce Coupe II" is considered a remake, it becomes obvious that lately rock music is not so attractive to ballet choreographers as it once was. In s sense, tonight's Joffrey program is already a program of classics from a recent, if bygone, era. The thoughts that are prompted by the decade of rock ballet that began with Mr. Joffrey's "Astarte" in 1967 suggest that the dance world may soon ring down the curtain on this hybrid form. Rock ballet reached its peak in 1970. The Canadian companies led the way with "Tommy," Fernand Nault's dance version of the "rock opera" by the Who for Grands Ballets Canadiens. In New York, as elsewhere, "Tommy" sold out. The Royal Winnipeg Ballet also did very well at home with Brian MacDonald's "Ballet High," with music by the Lighthouse. "Trinity" followed the same year. In 1972, Mr. Arpino tuned into the counterculture religious cults with "Sacred Grove on Mount Tamalpais" with music by Mr. Raph.

By the time Miss Tharp came along with her stylization of social dances of the 1960's, "Deuce Coupe II" became more of a nostalgic ballet than a product of the present, The Beach Boys were clean-cut and their affluept images of sun and surf were reassuringly reflected in the work's romanticism. It had none of the violence of "Tommy."

Part of People's Attitude

Yet the course rock ballet has taken suggests that on artistic grounds the marriage of popular culture and high art has not totally worked out. Instead, rock culture affected ballet the way it did everything else, becoming part of people's stitude toward life.

It would be difficult to say, for example, that any rock score on this Joffrey program was musically related to the choreography in the way that Bach inspired George Balanchine's "Coocerto Barocco." Rock music turned" the works into social commentary. "Weewis" explores the relations and mores of three couples. "Deuce Coupe II" sums up the pre-Woodstock gen-eration in a specifically American idiom. "Trioity" contains oblique refer-ences to the counterculture and the peace movement during the Vietnam War. It is hard to think of a major rock ballet that does not comment upon ballet that noes not comment upon society. Today, the hopes that some rock enthusiasts entertained for rock ballet appear naive in 1971, for example, a writer for Dance magazine contrasted what be called "the romantic escape" of ballet with "the ultimate confronta-tion with reality" of rock music tion with reality" of rock music.

What would rock contribute to bal-let? The writer replied: "Enchantment with rock has grown along with life's disillusionments. The rock musician has become a new Messiah . . . Rock brings us back to a reality that society (puritanical and hypocritical) tells us does not exist."

And yet if one had to choose the probability of survival for either rock music or ballet, the safe bet would be obvious. Classical ballet has existed for 300 years. Will rock?

which Joseph Papp will open Feb. 4 at the Vivian Beaumont Theater in Lincoln Center.

The challenge for him with Chekhov, he said, is that he has to deal "with people as people, with life as it is at inconsequential hours of the day." Compared with Chekhov, he said, "peo-ple in Greek tragedy are more like energies and colors, five and water. With the trilogy I had enormous free-dom. Who knows how Greek plays were performed 2,000 years ago? But Chekhov is like a musical score-so precise. I hope to do Chekhov bumbly."

Although this is the first time that Mr. Serban has done Chekhov, in a Mir. Serven has done Chekboy, in a sense it is a homecoming. As a student in Bucharest, he was trained for six years in Stanislavsky theater. In 1966, while directing a play in a student fes-tival in Zagreb, he was discovered by Ellen Stewart, founder of La Mana. Miss Stewart brought him to La Mama, where his first production was of the Bizabethan melodrama "Arden of Fe-versham" In a staging influenced by the work of Antonin Artaud.

In 1970, for one year, he was an assistant to Peter Brook Mr. Serban traces the change in himself as director to his work with Mr. Brook, "At the Mama top of his career," said Mr. Sei "Brook left England, switched and started ao experimental compa Faced with Mr. Brook's ideas and of life, Mr. Serban said: "I asked self, why am I working in the the I atill don't know the answer, b asked the question."

WhileGuyLombardo Rings Out the Old...

By JOHN S. WILSON

C14

As the glittering ball that signals the New Year starts sliding down the side of No. 1 Times Square tonight and the seconds until midnight are counted off, Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians will, for the 48th con-secutive year, play out the old year and play in the new from coast to -coast. Mr. Lombardo will be seen tonight on Channel 2 and the CBS television network as well as the entire Canadian Broadcasting Corporation network from 11:30 P.M. until 1 A.M. His band will be playing in the Grand Ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel to an audience that will pay up to $125 a person for dinners, balloons and noisemakers a far cry from the $15 a person charged in 1929, when Mr. Lombardo and his musicians sent their first New Year's Eve program oot over the national airwaves from the Grill of the Roosevelt Hntel.

At the time of that first program, the Royal Canadians bad been in New York, playing at the Roosevelt, for barely two months after two tremendously successful years in Chicagn at the Granada Cafe. William Paley, who had formed the Columbia Broadcasting System the year before, urged Mr. Lombardo to move to New York so he could be featured nn a radin series sponsored by Robert Burns cigars

"CBS asked us to close out the old "USS asked us to close out the old year from the Roosevelt on its net-work," Mr. Lombardo, still suave and vigorous at 74, recalled the other day. "Then NBC said it wanted to start the new year with the band. I told NBC they'd have to ask Bill Paley. Naturally, we wanted to do it, and Paley agreed."

So the Lombardn band went on the air from 11:30 to midnight on CBS and then right hack from midnight to 12:30 OR NBC

"And," Mr. Lombardo added, "after a 15-mmute intermission, we went on WOR."

An Old Pattern

This set a pattern that bas been followed every year since. As long as the New Year's Eve programs were on radio, CBS had the last half-hour of the old year, NBC the first half-bour of the new year. When the celebratian shifted to television in 1953, the entire nnehour program (more recently extended to an hour and a half) was carried by a single network. NBC had it the first year, ABC had it for a couple of years, but as a rule it has been on CBS. It was also on that 1929 New Year's Eve broadcast that Mr. Lombardo first played "Auld Lang Syne" to bid the old year farewell.

"We hadn't started our Robert Burns program yet," Mr. Lombardo explained, but we knew we were gning in dn lt and we knew we were going to use 'Auld Lang Syne' as a theme, because Robert Burns wrote it. So we decided to use it on that New Year's Eve program, too. It seemed appropriate, and we were familiar with 'Auld Lang Syne' from Canada, where we grew up. As kids, we lived in a big Scottish settlement---London, Ontario---and they always closed an evening by playing 'Aukl Lang Syne' before the traditional 'God Save the King.'"

Most of the 47 Lombardo New Year's Eves have been properly festive occasions. But the band leader remembers a few that were not. There was the New Year's Eve in 1961 when Mrs. Winthrop Rockefeller got Mr. Lombardo to do his New Year's Eve program in Grand Central Station as a benefit for retarded children.

"We looked over the station in July," Mr. Lombardo said, "and we thought it was all right, But none of those geniuses-CBS, us or Grand Central-thought about the weather on New Year's Eve. Nn one thought to ask, how do you heat this place? On New Year's Eve, it was 15 degrees, and every rear's Eve, it was to degrees, and every time a door opened, a draft came in. People were sitting around with their coats on, trying to keep warm. I never saw so much peppy dencing in my life. Guests were given tickets for drinks. A deuk care through to have a train drunk came through to buy a train ticket and was given a liquor ticket by mistake. It was a noble experiment but a disaster.

A Wet New Year's Eve

The year the Americana Hotel pened, the Royal Canadians did their opened, the Royal Canadians ind their New Year's Eve program from the hotel's hrand new ballroom. "We were singing 'Happy New Year' at midnight" Mr. Lombardo recalled "when I noticed that the guys in the head process string cut at the foor band were staring out at the floor, their mouths open. We have a strict rule in the band—no matter what haprule in the band—no insiter what hap pens in the room, pay no attention to it. But a piece of the ceiling had fallen dnwn, and water was pouring down into the hallroom. Waiters with buckets and mnps were racing around trying to catch the water, trying to save the women's fur coats.

What had happened was that it was nine below zero, and the botel'a new water tower had burst, sending the water down a stairwell that turned just above the hallroom. People watching on televisinn thought it was just special effects."

. When Mr. Lombardn transferred his New Year's celebration to Los Angeles in 1935, where he played at the Ambasador Hntel, the heantiful people of Hallywood came nut in farce.

"George Raft, who used to be a hoofer, was dancing with Marlene Dietrich," the band leader recounted, "when he suddenly leaped up on the band stand and started to do the Charleston. He was winging away when he hit a music stand and broke his ankle. Suddenly, he's down on the floor, writhing in pain

Guy Lombardo, who will lead the Royal Canadians for the 48th New Year's Eve Grand Central was "a noble experiment-but a disaster" and Marlene Dietrich is trying to comfort him. I felt sorry for the poor guy. He was having such a good time. They had to carry him away."

For Mr. Lombardo and the band, New Year's Eve is not just another engagement. He began planning this year's program last summer, and for the last three days there have been heavy rehearsals with Carol Lawrence and Billy Eckstine, who will appear tonight with the band.

Andience Participation

"The idea of a New Year's Eve show is to try to get audience participation," Mr. Lombardn pointed out. "Last year, right after midnight, we had the audi-ence singing, 'Happy birthday, Amer-ica' for the Bicentennial. This year we're going to do dances-the hustle, the tarantella, tha polka, the Greek thing to 'Never on Sunday,' the Charleston. And the bunny bop. We've tried the bunny hop on the road since last summer, and no matter what kind of crowd we bave, they get in the middla Inf the floor and start hopping. Last summer at Jones Beach, we had people hopping all over the place."

Selecting material for the New Year's Eve show is a thankless task, Mr. Lombardn has fnund

"We get the damndest kind of critics in nur audience," he said. "They com-plain that we don't play enough old songs. They complain that we don't play enough new songs. We get mail fur months afterward criticizing the show: Yoo forgot this, you should have done that. We're always doing Boo Hoo,' but if we leave it out, we get more mail than ever. And if we play it, we get letters saying, 'Don't you guys know anything but "Boo Hoo"?'"

The theory for the lead-up half-bour, starting at 11:30 P.M., is, according to Mr. Lombardo, to be "happy, but not hilarious." It will include "Feelings" ("The best of the new songs," according tn Mr. Lombardn), and another contemporary song, "I Write the Snogs," which, he confesses, baffles him. "I think it's a stupid song," he admitted. "I don't understand it. But when we play it, people applaud, and I won't go against public opinion."

There will be some old songs -"Charley, My Boy," "High Society" and "Baby Face."

"Last year," he said with a gvin, "some teen-agers who live next door to me in Freeport asked me, "Please play that new song, 'Baby Face,' on your New Year's Eve program,' 'New song?' I exclaimed. We were playing Baby Face' when we were younger than you." "

"Under the Double Eagle" will lead up to New Year's Eve, "Auld Lang Syne" will be played at the great mo-ment, and the New Year will start with the bustle, the alley cat, the bunny hop and the other dances, leading to seg-ments for Miss Lawrence and Mr. Eck-tine and winding up the 30-minute nroments for Miss Lawrence and Mr. Eck-stine and winding up the 30-minute pro-gram with some traditional Lombardo music, including "Bnn Hoo." And when New Year's Eve is over,

Mr. Lombardo immediately gets ready for his next traditional appearance at the Presidential inaugural. The Royal Canadians have played at every inaugu-ral since Franklin D. Roosevelt's in 1933. For Jimmy Carter, Mr. Lumbardo has dug out two arrangements that the band has not played for more than 20 years — "The Peanut Vendor" and "Everything Is Peaches Down in Georgia."

Ralph Lee and his giant puppets and anyone else who cares to participate. The parade will end at the fountain, dressed up for the occasion as a giant cake. Rock and salsa orchestras will play for dancing, and mimes, musicians, dancers, jugglers and clowns will per-form. There will be mulled cider to drink, bot dogs and other snacks, and at the stroke of midnight a fireworks display—supervised by George Plimp-torl, the city's "Commissioner of Fire-works"—will shoot up from the Bow Bridge north of the fountain. All of The parade will end at the fountain, Bridge porth of the fountain. All of this is free, except the refreshments, and it is being paid for with private donations and money from the New York State Council on the Arts.

Light Show on Times Square If you're one of those traditionalists who must go to Times Square on New Year's Eve, you'll find something a little different this year. The New Year ball of light will still begin dropping from the roof of No. One Times Square at 10-second intervals as it has always done, but it will culminate in a multi-colored light show on a new 40 foot by 20 foot screen on the building's fourth floor. During the evening there will be quizzes put up on the board, and answers will have the be malled in. In the winners will go tickets to shows, restaurants, and—the grand prize— your name will be sent glowing out into the square, according to the Spec-tacolor people who own the new advertacolor people whn own the new advertising sign.

Every show on Broadway will have performances tonight, many with seats still available. You can spend the evening at the Metropolitan Opera with Beverly Sills in "Lucia di Lammer-moor" (there are a few seats still availabla) and dine at the Top of the Met. Or, there is the "Bugs Bunny Follies" at Madison Square Garden with Batman and Robin as guests. If ynu want to dine and dance, ENTIST IN THE WHITE HOUSE. The rivate Diary of President Eisenhower's pecual Assistant for Science and Tech-Mogy, By George B. Kistiakowsky, In-goduction by Charles S. Maior, 448 Eggs. Harvard University Press, $15.

HIS EXCELLENT introduction o this long, important and rathdepressing book, Charles S. faier, an associate professor of at Duke University, speaks of entists who went to Washingthe late 1950's-just after Sputnplex—as averaging about 50 of age and having "moved bc-ne traditionally brief decades as te researchers to serve more as fediaries and administrators." He les: "A certain cameraderic unitly: a common participation in the tic ambience of the Manhattan for the M.I.T. Radiation Labora-then service on one of the mili-jummer studies.'... tf the Op-mer experience had deeply hurt participants, they were still to presume that the alliance be-their long-term research efforts. their long-term research efforts te aspirations of the United States world power was logical, defensi-ad meritorious."

"d what did these scientists do in lington? Mr. Maier, again, is very to the point: They suggested "a of plausible alternatives in terms at behavior might be controlled various arrangements that would to be negotiated politically." He in to say. "Such information was confused with the answering of questions. But the new scientific panels could only multiply 5 or frame them more intelligent-" could not resolve them." ied. From July 1959 until January

In Harvard professor of chemisd, incidentally, veteran of the Russian Army and the Los s project-served as President t D. Eisenhower's special assist-science and technology and was ian of the President's Science Ad-Committee and cf the Federal il for Science and Technology. is simultaneously concerned with rediate-range ball;stics missile pment, radioactive strontium in the space program, arms conontaminated cranberries, Federal ing of basic research, talent retent, U-2 overflights and, most icant, negotiations for a nuclear an treaty.

ough it ail, he kept an amazingly ed diary, from the ore-press brief-it 7:30 A.M. to the martinis before at the Cosmos Club to the dinner s and after-dinner speeches. body who was anybody in Ameriechnocracy is here, from Edward , the father of the H-bomb, to H. Lind, the father of the Polaamera, net to mention Elsenhow-lichard M. Nixon, Maurice H. Allen W. Bulles, Nikita S. Khru-Charles de Gaulle, Chîang Kaland our newly designated Secre-of Defense, Harold Brown, about Mr. Kistlakowsky has some resons.

ile one wishes he had more of elist's eye-we hear these people, ever see them, and there are no more conscientious diarist or a better editing job. Whether Mr. Kistiakowsky is sitting in on meetings of the Limited War Panel, the Arms Limilation Panel, the Continental Air Defense Panel, the Radiation Council or the National Security Council, we know exactly what the argument is about, who cares which way and why. We learn how much Eisenhower thought of de Gaulle (a "psychopath") and Joseph Alsop t"about the lowest form of animal life on earth"), and how little Mr. Kisti-akowsky thought of Dr. Teller, Mr. Stans, Mr. Dulles, John A. McCone these chairmen of the Atomic Freerow (then chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission) and Arthur 5, Flemming Eisenhower is portrayed as an intelli-gent if not terribly hard-working President dedicated to peace and perhaps more comfortable in the pursuit of it after John Foster Dulles was no looger around. Policy making is portrayed in all its staggering complexities, techni-cal uncertaioties, bureaucratic bloodlet-tings and political compromises, as well as the immeose waste of time involved when a Francis Gary Powers drops in to wreck a summit meeting. Mr. Kisti-akowsky is portrayed as a man not much afflicted with self-doubts, jotting down the various flatteries that came his way, enjoying every perk of office except speechmaking.

(then Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare).

Mr. Kistiakowsky says now that be saw himself "as a techniciao whose task it was to execute the general poli-cies set by my superiors," and then in the course of his service grew skepti-cal about some of the policies, "espe-cially those of the Pentagon." That is all to the good. Technicians spring up like weeds: there is always another bundle of them. A scientist, a real scientist, is supposed to be skeptical. But one wonders whether his experience shouldn't have suggested to him another sort of skepticism. What, for around talking to Republican women's cluos, worrying about how to paper "Ine weakness of the Administraover tion's position," urging the President to "include cranberry sauce on his Christmas menu . . . in view of the public turmoll" over contaminants? It is depressing that a mao as intelligent as Mr. Kistlakowsky can look back on this fascinaling 15-year-old journal and not see that on almost every page he was playing politics; that his principal, or his constituency, was not the nation, but a particular President who, thrillingly, called him "George"; that an Arthur Flemming earned his ridicule because an Arthur Flemming worried more about the dangers of using a sex hormone to accelerate the growth of poultry and calile than he did about the domestic political consequences of offending farmers and the meat inoustry. Mr. Kistiakowsky is in a permanent twitch about what the Congressional Democrats might do. It is not a disinterested, scientific twitch.

Of course, the honeymoon of science and government is over. It ended during the Vietnam War, when many scientists rame to question "the aspirations of the United States as a world power." A necessary skepticism, it seems to me, would ask at what point a scientist in the White House becomes more of a White House apparatchik and less of a scientist.

Locks from Iran at the Gray Art Gallery

Antiques Rita Reif

N WESTERN culture, keys but not locks have always had great significance. References abound from Shakespeare to Dickens's Scrooge; and then there is the practice of presenting keys of the city to bonored guests. In the middle East, how ever, locks-not keys-are potent with meaning.

This fact will come as no surprise to those who have visited the bazaars of Teheran or Isfahan. But for those of us who have not, there is a remark-able exhibition, "Locks from Iran: Pre-Islamic to 20th Century," that will prove even more informative.

Most of the 463 examples shown at the Grey Art Gallery. New York Uni-versity, 33 Washington Place at Washington Souare East, are padlocks, dat-ing back as much as 16 centuries. The exhibition, which will remain through Jan, 12, is being circulated by the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibillion Service. The gallery is open Tuesday through Friday, 10 A.M. to \bar{o} P.M., except today when it will be closed for New Year's Eve.

Likened to Persian Weaving

The show is, in fact, full of provoca-tive figural and abstract designs demonstrating the same level of sophistication that we have become familiar with in Persian weaving, ancient glass and the pottery of early Islam. The lock mechanisms are ingenious, too, and match in excellence the sculptural forms and decorative embellishments. Indeed. many of these animal, bird, fish, anthropomorphic and floral designs-especially the oldest-are reminiscent in craftsmanship of the jewelry and hardware of the ancient Egyptians and the Scythians.

Locks were made by hand in Iran and almost everywhere through the 19tb century, when imported machine-made ern bronzes—50 of them—are also on view in an adjoining art gallery. Most are abstract studies, ranging in size from a few inches to 12 feet in height and are suggestive of locks, calligraphy and other traditional Islamic forms. Although most of the locks on view are of iron or steel, some designs are of solid gold, as in the case of the lock from the Holy Shrine at Masbad and the padlock from the Imperial Bank. Others are inlaid with bits of precious jewels, usually an indication that the locks were made for shrines. But from the smallest-the size of a pistachio nut-to the largest-more than a foot lonz-the vigor of the design is undeniable. The goats, water buffaloes, horses and lons, whether boldly wrought with arclike legs and loops for heads or elched with some features, the suggestions of manes and a coat of calligraphy, are invariably taut and appear set to soring. One superb 16th-century lion, its rear legs bent in readiness, has its tail up and curved against the arm of the lock, Stylized sludles—a nightingale that is overly plump and has a shrunken head, a lion with scalloped back paws and a scalloped mouth a two-headed dragon that provokes more giggles than terror-are superbly wrought.

Most in Working Order

Virtually every lock on view is in working order, Mr. Tanavoli reported. He explained that there were a var ety of types—barbed spring locks, helical spring locks, those with top shackles, cylinder-type combinations that are rolled to open aod many that are opened with as many as three keys. It is the combination locks that were, he said, innovative in the 13th century and are the basis for the combination used by Iranians however, satisfied far more than their need for securing boxes, chests, ocors and cupboards Locks were talismen to ward off evil to insure happiness, to ease problems

Some communities, including Kerend, a large village near Kermanshah, were dominated by masters of such metal-work, much of which was fabricated to satisfy certain psychological needs or to be worn in religious rituals. Today, the locksmiths and their children there have switched to making great difficulty finding people who could discuss the dying craft. It was necessary, he said, to travel to remote villages, where elderly people could reconstruct the craft scene and explain its superstitions and religious implica-

It is in every way a superior presen-tation. Indeed it is Wednesday Evening gruesome to realize that some Iranians January 12 at 8 pm wore locks pinching their skin in peni-tence and that others made it a habit at Lenox Hill to attach a lock to the grill of a mosque eighborhood House to convey a wish. Art People Grace Glueck

T'S NOT EVERY DAY that a dissi-dent Soviet artist arrives to roost io SoHo, but Ernst Nelzvestny, Russia last March after some 50 tries for an exit visa, has acquired a studio at 78 Grand Street

Speaking in Russian through an interpreter the other day, Mr. Neizvestny, a short but feisty-looking man of 50 sporting a skinny mustache, said that he was learning English at Berlitz and planned to stay here. He'd spent five "months in Europe lining up commis-sions and shows, and still has a studio in Zurich, be reported. "Bnt I'm a monumeotalist, and there's a much better chance of doing mooumental sculpture here than in Europe."

He just happened to have with him He just happened to have with him plans for several monumental works, Mr. Neizvestny, said, and, diving loto a briefcase, he whipped them out. The biggest, "Tree of Man," is a "plastic "mystery" nearly 500 feet high and 500 feet wide, composed of seven "branches" linked by a central elevator "shaft. The whole would comprise more than 850 individual nerce of sculpture. than 850 individual pieces of sculpture, already made: a melange of Op, Pop, psychedelic, cinematic, light and kinetic images.

A smaller but still colossal extravaganza is his proposed memorial to the Kennedy brothers, with lots of muscular striving figures, two crosses and a regiant image of Mankind, bearing on its chest the two fallen hrothers. And n third is n monumont to the victims of "Stalinism, a proposal actually made by Mikita S. Khrushchev in his famous de-Stalinization speech to the 20th Party Congress some years ngo. For "this one, the sculptor is trying to organize a committee to provide financing for a site. For a dissident artist, life in the Soviet Uoion was hardly a bed of roses, Mr. Neizvestny confirmed, holding up a crooked finger that be said had been "broken by "hooligans" working for the "Soviet secret police. In disfuvor for his ... Soviet secret police. In distriver for IIS ... avant-garde ideas, he had won Khrush-chev's friondship in 1962 by answering the party chief back wheo he de-nounced abstract art at an exhibition in Moscow. But there were still no "commissions. Then, in 1971, informed ... by architect friends of an Egyptian commuting for a work to adorn the competition for a work to adorn the Aswan Dam, Mr. Neizvesiny applied anonymously and won, to the hugo em-harrassment of both the Egyptians and the Russians. "There was a struggle, hut they finally let me go to accept the commission." he reports. "Semi-logal" aftor that, he was com-missioned to do a work in 1973 for tho Ministry of Electronics and another massivo sculpture in 1975 for the Cen-tral Committee of the Communist Party of the Turkoman Republic. For that, Mr. Neizvestny reports, he received the "equivalent of $500,00, hy organizing a team of his own students to do the work

"Tho genoral practice there was to pay the sculptor n flat fee for his do-sign, thon havo it executed by Govern-sign, then have it executed by Govern 'ment workmen. There was oo precedent for what I did, hut my enomies thought

 But wheo he finally received per-missioo to leave the country, Mr.

Weekend Gardening:

The New York Times/Jack Manning Ernest Neizvestny, Russian sculptor

Neizvestny says, he, like other émigrés, was only allowed to take the equivalent of $90. "I distributed the rest of my of any. I distributed the rest of my money among dissideots and members of the Jewish immigration movement," assorts the scultpor, who is half-Jewish. "Many were able to leavo on my money, and many have since paid me back."

"Nothing can happed with art in Russia-there's oo future for it there, because art and freedom are syn-onymous," he continued. And what did he think of American art? "I have only superficial impressions so far, but I think the work of Calder reflects this country best, I understood Calder for the first time after I'd walked oo New York streets and then saw his show at the Whitney. He reflects it all-buses, cars, machinery, houses, people, lights. He is perhaps the first completely con-temporary American sculptor."

Artforum, the influential monthly that for 14 years has served up the best—and the worst—in dialectic about contemporary art, is in search of somo new editorial talent. Charles Cowles, its backer and publisher, said last week that he wouldn't renew the contract that he wouldn't renew the contract-oxpiring today-of John Copians, who'a occupied the chain of editor in chief since 1972, but who's been associated with the magazine, off and on, since its beginnings on the West Coast in 1962, And in the wake of that, Max Kozloff, exocutive editor for two years, announced his own resignation.

"I didn't ngree with the directioo the magazino was taking," said Mr. Cowles, who also functions as curator of modern art at the Scattle Art Museum. "I feel it should be more in touch with the contemporary art world—having more reporting and analysis of that. It bothered me that most of my friends wore silent about the magazine."

For many years Artforum had been the leading voice of the "formalist" mproach based on the high-fashion art of the 1960's, pushing Pop, color field, Minimal and Conceptual art hy means of criticism, theory, debate and docu-mentation. But in the last few years,

Mr. Coplans, in tandem with Mr. Koz-loff, hnd changed the editorial policy, putting less emphasis on esthetic criticism and more oo articles relating to the socioeconomic bases of art and the art world. Some of Artforum's followers objected to what they saw as "negativism" toward the art sceno and politicization of criticism in its pages.

And last year Hilton Kramer, art critic for this newspaper, wrote an articlo chiding the magazine for its "muddled and strident Marxism, insistent upon a tendentious sociopolitical analysis of all artistic events and deeply suspicious of all esthetic claims."

Mr. Cowles cooceds that he was disturbed by the Kramer article, and also by a lawsuit against the magazine enendered by an article written by Mr. Coplans two years ago on the now-defunct Pasadena Museum of Modern Art (the case is still pending). Oo the plus side, he said, was Mr. Coplans's assumption of many of the duties of publisher and the fact that he had holped put the magazine into the black (its circulation now hovers around 20,000).

Mr. Coplans said he was "a little dazed" by Mr. Cowles's nction. "Tm not angry," he ooted, "but we do have a difference of views. We made Artforum a different magazine from what it was. "It was no longer a mouthpiece . for certain artists. We sought to examine the claims of other artists and to deal with social and political facts. The articles have been very varied. A number of our art-dealer advertisers were unhappy—they wanted the maga-zine to continue as it was in the 60'a." Mr. Kozloff said that he believed his and Mr. Coplans's departures meant the deprival of oditorial autonomy that . Artforum had enjoyed.

The season's cheeriest Christmas card was undoubtedly that sent hy Chris Burden, the West Coast conceptual-performance artist, to 100 selected art worldings, ranging from Vito Accooci to Diana Slotnick. Its dignified message, in script print on an elegant white folded card, read "Meny Christmas from Chris Burden." Inside was a crisp new $10 bill. "Of course it's an art piece," said Mr. Burden from his home in Venice, Calif. 'It's just a funny way of treating money, like a joke on the old Christmas thing where your grandmother sends you cash. To me, the money was simply raw material, like wood, metal or anything olso an artist uses." Mr. Burden says ho sent half of the $10'a to friends and half to peoplo he'd Sloa to friends and mur to people as a dono husiness with. "I took oote of the serial oumbers," ho said, "and I'll in-clude it in my list of pieces." This one is relatively aedate. Mr. Burden's other "art pieces" include having a friend shoot him in the arm with a .22 rille, staying in a locker for five days and fixing match packets at his wife. firing match rockets at bis wife firing match rockets at bis wife. The artist says the greenback idea has not produced a lot of feedback, al-though "some people did some funny things. About four or five sent the money back—they were mostly busi-nesspeople with guilt about accepting it. One artist, lleno Segalove, made it into a bowtio and returned it. Some people I sent it to owed me mocey or had given me a rough time in business dealings; they seemed to think it was dealings; they seemed to think it was a put-down. On the other hand, a few just went out and spent it right away."

By HERBERT MITGANG

UDDENLY, it looks as if this is, the season of new books and films about the Holocaust and films about the Holocaust and its aftermath. The Holocaust is neuther a trend nor trendy; it has be-' come a recognized discipline.

According to Seymour Barofsky, executive editor of Schocken Books, which has put out a dozen books in the last few years as part of a Holo-caust studies list, this category has been stabilized as a field because it is part of modern history. As with World War I or the Russian Revolution, a new approach will always be welcomed by a publisher.

The story of the extermination of Jews in World War II is now studied in high schools, colleges, temples and churches. It is discussed and read about. "The Holocaust" by Nora Levin has become a standard high school text. Another forthcoming Schocken book. "A Camera in the Ghetto," has aroused interest because it depicts the Lodz ghetto under the Nazis.

The variety of Holocanst literature is shown in the three new books noted below, each of which stands strongly and independently on its own.

The copyright page of "Auschwitz: Beginning of a New Era?" somewhat unusually reads: (c)Copyright 1977 The Cathedral of St. John the Divine. Subtitled "Reflections on the Holocaust," the book turns out to be a joint publishing venture of the KTAV Publishing House of New York, the cathedral and the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith. The book's editor, Eve Fleishner, is a Christian theologian who teaches at Montclair State College in New Jersey.

This ecumenical project is a provocative book containing reflections on the Holocaust by many of the world's eminent historians, sociologists, philosophers, theologians and writers, includ-ing Rosemary Radford Ruether, Gregory Baum, Arthur I. Waskow, Alfred Kazin and Elie Wiesel. The book grew out of papers given at the International Symposium on the Relocanst hold at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in June 1974.

The tone of tho book is set by the Episcopal Bishop of New York, Paul Moore Jr., in his welcoming address: "It is good not to have only Episcopalians out there, but an audience other than our own. . . . We turn nway io horror not only from what happened theo but hecause, if we look into our own souls, we know that we too were there, at Auschwitz."

Among the eloquent papers printed here is that of Alfred Kazin, essayist and critic, who noted:.

"The real history of many Jews since 1945 has been to give Jews not a 'reasoo' for the Holocaust but an explanation in Jewish-historical terms. We who were not there, yet for whom Auschwitz is forever stamped in our minds, whose real life bas been to restore the bond of sacredness to a history rooted in the bond of sacredness and meaningless without it, we have a historical experience that we did not live ourselves. . . . Remembrance is the core of our religion. We all hear witness to each othor now."

"Now Lives: Survivors of the Holo-caust Living in America," by Dorothy Rabinowitz (published by Alfred A. Knopf, and a Book-of-the Month Club selection) is the end product of n trip across America and many interviews with European Large who suprived the with European Jews who survived the Gormans. Finding nothing left of their former world, these survivors created new lives in the United States.

Miss Rabinowitz, who grew up in the Corona section of Queens "across the tracks fron Forest Hills," recalled the anti-Semitism she encountered in her youth there. "Walking down Madi-son Avenue." she said the other day, "I would suddenly envision people here as if they lived in Germany during the Holocaust, carrying their suitcases to-ward the trains that never returned." When she appeared on a call-in radio when she appeared on a call in rando show in Georgia recently, she was fore-warned that some of the "crackers" out there might subject her to insults, including anti-Semitic remarks. The exact opposite was the case.

"Some of the calls I received came from veterans who had opened the gates to the cocentration camps," she recalled. "They had not forgotten what it was like and what the Germans had done. And what they said confirmed what I learned during interviews with the survivors. While four different nn-tionalities among the Allies opened up the gates, it was the American soldiors who camo back every day with tho food and supplies that meant survival." Miss Rabinowitz, whose research was helped by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, is oow working oo a book about "prose-cutors and the prosecutor montality." 1. 1. 1. 1.

The Holocaust story continues in "Wanted! The Seach for Nazis in America," by Howard Blum, which will be published in mid-January by Quad-rangle/The New, York Times Book Company. This startling story by an investigative reporter recounts how nearly a hundred known Nazi war criminals reconstructed their lives and how they were tracked down not in remote South America, but in the United States.

According to the author, the Nazis

Keeping Track

All right! This time I'm going to keep it up the whole year. What I mean is that I will keep a green book, a plant record. For both indoor and out-door gardening it's one of the most useful single tools the plant enthusiast hns; it is also one of the least expensive and easiest to maintain. All it takes is a littlo willpower.

This isn't in the form a n New Year's resolution, mind you. I gave up such endeavors years ngo. It somehow seems appropriate that a journal should hegin either at the start of some great jour-ney-and the plants and I are going nowhere at tho moment-or at the onset of a new year. Temporally speakonset of a new year. Temporally speak-ing, of course, this is only a crutch. I could just as well have started after colebrating Santa Lucia Day. That being the shortest day of the year, the sunlight for my plants would increase regularly beyond that point. And light being of the essence-unless one ia cul-tivating fungl-it would have been a most natural starting point. I did in fact think of it while ounking freshly baked saffron buns io my steaming hot chocolate by candlelight that cold dark - morning of Dec. 13. Since saffron is - The dried stigmas of a certain Crocus - sativus, it reminded me that I'd never - finished planting our spring hulbs.

Part of the prohlem with keeping a plant journal, I suspect, is the very calendric approach that normally starts keeping for a vast number of plants gets to be an unmanageable chore, no matter how industriously ono starts out. So my approach this year will be different. Instead of recording ench day or so those events of importance that have occurred in the green world inside and out, I'm starting a file of big index cards. One for each plant or crop.

the year. Somehow a day-to-d index cards. One for each plant or crop. My cymbidiums will have a card of their own. Then, instead of leafing through a notebook to find out how long ago fertilizer was applied, or when last season the first flower spike hroke through, I'll merely check their card. The hegonias will have a card of their own, or more likely several. Then if I decide I really want a patch of color to kiven up the kitchen next Christmas, I have only to flip through their cards to realize those hlooming now were sown the first week in August. Somohow, too, using individual cards sown the first week in August Somohow, too, using individual cards for each plant or crop, one doesn't trip over that I-forgot-to-note-what-hap-pened - yesterday, how - can - I - write-nbout-today syndrome that often stalls a budding journal after a few weeks. Keeping a card file, it's quite natural to have only occasional entries.

I can see nothing to stop me from keeping n perfect set of growing records this year. I could even get green index cards. First thing tomor-row. I forgot the stores would be closed on New Year's Day. Oh well, the day efter then after then

IV WEEKEND

Ŀ

By JOHN J. O'CONNOR

C2U

New Year's Eve can be spent with lively propriety in the company of Arthur Fiedler and the Bostoo Pops (Channel 13 at 11 P.M.) or with poptock nostalgia with Frankie Valli as host (Channel 7 at 11:30). Purists, however, will find "New Year's Eve With Goy Lombardo" oo Chanoel 2, "Auld Lang Syne" just doesn't sound the same without the benefit of Mr. Lombardo's orchestratioo. And viewers at home may get some small measure of satisfactioo watching couples who have paid between $90 and $125 per person for the privilege of craning their necks at the television cameras oo a paiofully crowded dance floor. The country will also be treated to what has become the most curious electronic happening of any year. That is the "iostant replay" of the stroke of midnight, presumably for all those who found it so fascinating the first time around. Or perhaps it is designed in allow viewers who tuned in late the heady illusion that they are partici-pating io the real thing. The television bouse of mirrors is hewitching. Otherwise, the weekend television schedole is studded with football schedole is studded with football games aod repeats of many regular series. Fresh news of any significance can be measured in minutes. CBS's "Bicentennial Minutes" series, which began on July 4, 1974, comes to an end tonight with President Ford ask-ing the nation to pledge to keep the spirit of '76 alive in the New Year. That suggested resolution will be nf-fered at approximately 8:50 P.M. Then, at 8:58 tomorrow night, CBS News will introduce "Newsbreak," a one-minute headline service that will be broadcast each evening in the style of NBC's "News Update" minutes. These minutes, incidentally, come out of program time, not commercials time and, with full sponsorship, are nicely profitable.

For the new year, ABC and Barbara. Walters bave been resourceful enough to record "A Farewell Visit With Presi-dent and Mrs. Ford," and the hourlong dent and Mrs. Ford, and the homoig result can be seen Sunday at 7 P.M. The President is at ease fielding inevitable questions about his alleged postelec-tion depression ("totally untrue") or, after a move to Palm Springs. Calif., his future plans ("I don't anticipate unning action for actional office").

some of the more interesting per-sonal moments are found in Mrs, Ford's tour of the private family quarters in the White House. The Yellow Oval Rnom, decorated by Jacqueline Kennedy, is deemed too formal and stiff. In another room, Mrs. Kennedy's wallpaper was fnund "too depressing" and was removed. A bax labeled, with lrony, "The President's Tapes-Do Nat Remove" contains music cartridges, the selections running right down the middle of the road from Mantovani and "Doctor Zhivago" to "The Best of Charley Pride."

Even his staunchest political opponents are likely to agree that the Fords are thoroughly decent and attractive people. This farewell visit nicely re-inforces that impression. "Fall of Eagles," the BBC series that traces the collapse of royal dy-nasties in Austria-Hungary, Germany and Russia from 1845 to World War I, is given its next monthly installment on Chaooel 5 Sunday at 9 P.M. Deal-ing with complex historical relationships and interrelated events, the project bas maintained a remarkable

For him, the "success of the revolution is the supreme law," and power takes prece-dence over complex moral choices. The plot and themes are intricate, and the script doesn't entirely avoid mo-meotary bits of confusion. But with the meotary outs of confusion, but with the help of solid performances, this cru-cial slice of history is made fascinat-ing, from Lenin's barring of a Jewisb "bund" from the party to his initial personal and theoretical hreak with Transfer Trotsky. TV Bowl Fans Await Kicko

Until television came along, Carl Haverlin used to drive to Pasadena from the San Fernando Valley each year for the Rose Bowl game. Now he watches it at home, along with 73 mil-lion other Americans, settling in also lion other Americans, settling in also for the Cotton, Sugar and Orange Bowi collegiate football games delivered electronically on New Year's Day. For Mr. Haverlin, a 77 year-old foot-ball buff, the bowl games hold a special attraction for he enjoys a certain pride of authorship in them. As a young man working for station KFT in Los Angeles, he conceived the idea of covering the Rose Bowl game on radio. He not only sold the mackage to NBC for due of sold the package to NBC for one of its first coest-to-coast broadcasts in 1927, but also with scant experience on the air, teamed up with the national-ly known sportscaster Graham MacVamee to do the play-by-play of the Stin-. ford-Alabama game.

From that seed grew the array of howl games, fostered hy the handsome sums for television and radio rights, that will turn this weekend into the longest of the year for the isolation of the sexes.

Custer in the Dock-Where the Witness Stand Is the Last One

THE COURT MARTIAL OF GEORGE ARMSTRONG CUSTER By Douglas C. Jones. 291 pages, Scribners, $8.96...

The game of "what if" is one of those parlor games historians play that never interested me. What if the South had won the war? What if the Visigoths had not sacked Rome? What if Marco Polo had brought egg rolls instead of pasta back to Italy: would Sophia Loren be the fine figure of a woman she is today? The events served up by real history have a sufficiently weighty ia-evitability about them, like cold cuts in the college dining hall on Sunday nights; one finds it hard to imagine roast duck he on her own for a minimum of 24 television bours.

Eight games—the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl tonight, the traditional New Year's Day foursome tomorrow and the American Bowl Classic and the Shrine East-West games Sunday—will, if past statistics are a forecast, play to a com-bined television aodience of more than 300 million viewers.

Three of every five persons watching (including teen-agers, who make up 20 percent of the howl audiences) will be male. Mr. Baverlin may thus be considered the father of the football widow, but that is not the distinction in which he glories. Rather, it is that the Rose Bowl, as the inspiration for the others, has never been exceeded by any of them in popularity or prestige, and has re-mained with NBC for 40 years as one of its cherished annual events.

In the salad days of radio, the com-mercial stations, then relatively few, strived for prominence in their com-munities. NBC was just beginning to extend its lines to the West Coast late in 1926, and KFI wanted an affiliation with the network to increase its stature locally. Mr. Haverlin hit upon the Rose Bowl as an event that KFI might originate for the nation oo the network, and Deac Aylesworth, theo president of NBC, gave his affirmative decision in two days, Mr. Haverlin became a play-by-play announcer himself, describing one of the wildest momeots in sports. The Tournament of Roses committee of the Pasadena Chamber of Commerce had Pasanena Chamber of Commerce had agreed to radio coverage oo two condi-tions: that the game be carried also on shortwave radio for dissemination overseas and that Graham MacNamee, then a rising star in the new radio medium, deliver the broadcast.

Advancing to the Rear

However, Earl C. Anthony, owner of KFI, disapproved of the terms. He con-sidered it blasphemous for an Easterner to describe what he considered a dis-tingthe West tinctly West Coast event.

The compromise was that Mr. Haver-lin, a relative amateur at the mike although he had had an earlier flirtation with vaudeville, would alternate quar-ters with the esteemed Mr. MacNamee. It happened that Roy Riegels's classic "wrong-way" run occurred during a Haverlin-at-the-mike quarter in the 1928 game between Georgia Tech and the University of California. Amid all the excitement and confusion, with Riegets being pursued and eventually tack-led by one of his own teammates, Mr. Haverlin shouted cootinually to the radio audience that California's star radio audience that california's star center, who had picked up a fumble, was running "backwards." He meant, of course, toward the wrong goal line. But in a medium in which words provided sight, "back-wards" proved an onfortunate term. NBC was deluged with letters from listestimony at the court-martial about the Indians, custom, of mutilating the dead. Would the bated Yellow Hair, who had only recently led his troops in a massacre of an Indian village, be left merely stripped of his clothes by old-women scavengers? But enough of a minor matter; the author cleverly skirts the question hy keeping it well on the back burner un-til Custer's own testimony near the end of the book. Mr. Jones'a retired heu-tenant colonel himself, is more interested in the issues raised by Custer's

CHANTEYS ON LL

The romance of the sea is celebrated in its musical traditions, especially the robust chanteys, or work songs, of 19th-century sailors. On Sunday, at 2 P.M., Stout, an all-male quartet, will give a concert of these songs at the Cold Spriog Harbor Whaling Museum. The group will sing the chanteys a cappella, just as sailors did a century ago while they wore hoisting sails and pulling ropes. Stout also sings another traditional kind of sea song, the finecastle, or sentimental ballad, which sailors sang at the end of a which sailors sang at the end of a hard day. These melodic tunes are accompanied by guitar, banjo, man-dolin and concertina. Museum admission: 75 cents for adults; 25 cents for children. On Route 25A, two miles west of Huntington. Information: (516) 367-3418. The museum, which has in its collection an authentic whaling boat and an extensive scrimshaw collection, is open from 11 A.M. to 5

CAROL LAWSON

Douglas C. Jones's new novel appears at first blush to be in the "what-if" genre but it is so solid a performance in its own right that the intellectual gamesmanship pales into insignificance. Besides, if you must know, I couldn't really swallow, the premise, which is that Gen George A. Custer survived the Battle of Little Big Horn and, as the title says, was court-martialed by the Army.

To deal with my doubts about the premise before going any farther: I simply cannot believe that the thou-sands of Sjoux who overran Custer's command, killing every last man and boy, would have left a wounded, un-conscious Custer unfinished off, as the novel says they did. There is ample personality and flamboyant career. In his novel be has the order for courtmartial emanate from President U. S. Grant himself, with the full approval of the Army Commander In Chief, William Tecumseh Sherman. Custer's glory-hounding, and self-promoting has be-come a threat to the good order of the officer corps; besides, his foolhardy engagement against a force of Sloux many times the strength of his 200 men smacks of blatent negligence. Custer's defense, of course, is if you are going to try a general who's lost a battle, where can you call a hait? Two of the generals on the military court had famous defeats under their belt-as did most Union generals in the Civil War. Most of the book is taken up with the court-martial and Mr. Jones has dramatized it ontil the exchanges fairly crackle like a fusillade of gunfire. His prosecuting officer and defense attor-ney are eminently worthy opposents,

When the Fed Is in the Counting House, Counting Up the Nation's Money (Supply)

By JOHN H. ALLAN

Every Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, financial news wires, flash the report: M-1 is up $2 billion, M-1 is down $1 billion, M-1 is onchanged. Bond dealers, who have been daw-dling through the mid-strenoon, spring into action, making bond proces rise or fall. The next day the stock market may react. Congress-men become vexed when they think

M-I is rising too slowly. In the weekly reports M-1 is m-variably defined as the nation's money supply— currency in circula-tion plus most checking-account balances. That's straightforward enough, but the brevity of the defi-nition leaves many questions unanwered.

Who counts np all the pennies, mickels and dimes each week? Who balances all the checkbooks in the country? How are all the numbers brought together? How are they totaled in time? Are they accurate? How is the Herculean statistical ex-ercise accomplished?

'If stock and bond prices mova up or down in response to charges in ova up or down in response to charges in the money supply, investors clearly should know something about the oumbers. If Congress reacts to changes in M-1, noninvesting citizens should know something about them, too

Accounting Proposal Ends Bank-Writedown Specter Standards Board Favors

Mild View of 'Troubled Loan' Restructuring

By FREDERICK ANDREWS The Financial Accounting Standards Board yesterday lifted tha specter of mul-tibilion-dollar writedowns by the nation's banks' by proposing a conventional and relatively mild accounting treatment for the restructuring of "troubled loans." The board's proposal, if ultimately adopted, would apply only to troubled loans renegotiated after oext June 30 aod nnt retroactively—as many bankers bad feared—to the hillions of dullars nf such indebtedness already in bank portfolios.

A restructuring of a troubled loan occurs when a creditor is forced by a debtor's financial plight to grant relief to e debtor mable to meet its obligations. Io rcent years, numerous such restructurings have occurred, a great many involv-ing loans to real estate investment trusts. Many banks have chosen to forgo ioterest rather than foreclose on properties.

City's Fiscal Crisis

New York City's fiscal crisis and the exchange of the Municipal Assistance Corporation's bonds for New York City's notes, also focused attention on the is-sue. Yesterday's proposal, bowever, even would If it were retroactive, apparently not require write-downs of that debt. The standards board interpreted the swap as simply a modification of a continuing debt.

Consideration of restructured debt has probably stirred more iotense controversy for the standards board than any other project. Earlier thia year, the board's discussion paper on possible proposals—in-cluding more drastic changes—provokod an outpouring of protests by banks and bank regulators, including Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board

The banking community saw the paper as foreshadowing a requirement for banks to make massive writedowns to reflect the numerous loans earning interest below prevailing market rates or no interest at all. The banks interpreted this -wrongly, the standards board main-taioed-as leading to a continual revaluation of their loan portfolios according to current market values. The standards board emphasized yes terday that its proposal conformed to conventional "historical cost" accounting. It said neither dehtor nor creditor would be required to again revalue a restructured loan after the initial restructuriog, except for the usual assessment by a creditor of the collectibility of receivables. The board yesterday issued a summary

Dow, Up 4.16, Closes at 999.09; Turnover Rises

By ALEXANDER R. HAMMER

The stock market, apparently encour aged by signs that the economy is continuing to improve, staged a broad advance yesterday io accelerated trading.

At the cluse, the Dow Jones industrial verage was ahead 4.16 points to 999.09. Its high for the session was posted at 3 P.M. when the key harometer was ahead 5.40 poiots. Some profit taking accounted for the late weakness.

The upswing was across the board with gainers outnumbering declines by a ratio of more than 2 to 1. The best performers were the hlue-chip and glamour issues.

Also helping the advance was the report Wednesday that November contracts for new construction in the nation rose 37 percent to $7.69 billion from the yearearlier's depressed level of $5,62 hillion.

Analysts stressed that there was noth-ing in the economic oews yesterday to account for the market's strength.

Many private economists are viewing the current picture and the 20-month recovery in much the same light. Even while the recent economic "pause" was lingering last fall, few private economists were disposed to think of the need for massive doses of stimulus to get the elephantine American conomy moving more briskly again. Now, they are even less inclined that way—and Mr. Carter also seems lately to be less concerned and more hopeful about the underlying strength of economic activi-

Coleen Strand, assistant vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis, overseas the collecting of data from all over the 9th Federal Reserve District. "Wa aggregate the information and send it on to the board in Washington," she explains.

On Monday night the 12 Federal Re-serve banks (from Boston to Minne-apolis to San Francisco) transmit summary telegrams over the Fed wire through Culpeper to the board's staff in Washington. These wires are fol-lowed on Tuesday night by more mes-sages with the numbers for smaller banks These telegrams carry the hard core of the money stock numbers pub-lished every Thursday afternoon.

Ready for Calculation

By Wednesday morning the board's staff, working at its Washington com-puters, have the data from all the wires, and they are ready to calculate demand deposits at member banks.

A number of adjustments are made, M-I does oot include demand deposits due to the Federal Government or demand deposits due to domestic com-mercial banks. So these deposits must be subtracted.

The Federal Reserve also must avoid double counting. This could happen when a check has not cleared and is still counted as a deposit both in the bank with the account on which it is drawn and in the bank where the re-cipient has deposited it.'

Consequently, the Fed deducts two other totals, known in monetary circles as "CLP.C.'s" and "Federal Reserve float." CLP.C.'s are cash items in the process of collection-checks being cleared for which credit has not yet it does include demand deposits of foreign commercial banks, mntual savings banks and banks in American territories and possessions. These have to be added.

For several years, too, "M-1-type bal-ances" of the 70 or so foreign bank agencies and branches in New York City bave been added, utilizing daily data they file with the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

In addition, other "M-1-type" deposits of Edge Act corporations in New York—out-of-state bank affiliates set up to help finance international trade—are also counted. Currently, thse two "M-l-type" balances increase the money supply by about $4 billion. The final component of the money supply is demand deposits of foreign central banks and other official institutions at Federal Reserve Banks, The amount is relatively small-about $500 million now.

All these adjustments are run through the Federal Reserve Board's computers on Wednesday and Thursday. In the computations the numbers are season-ally adusted. This process is done pri-

The estimates for a new solar bomeheating unit ranged between $4,000 and $12,000, and the minimum period in which such an investment would be recovered—in New York City—through savings on electricity was estimated at 10 years. This is longer than the seven-year median period of home ownership.

checklist could be especially useful for smaller companies. As a Doremus vice president, John P. Brico, explained, most large companies begin to work on their annual reports in the fall or earlier ;;

"We publish this checklist to trick our clients into getting an early start on their annual report and also to persuade them to provide stockholders with more information. We're publicly held ourselves and maybe that is why we are so aware of the need," Mr. Brion said.

Securities and Exchange Commission basic requirements are listed on the first page of the four-page checklist. These include the obvious such as a summary of operations for five years, a description of the company's busi-ness, certified financial statements and number of shares outstanding. Among the less obvious—and some that might even be overlooked—there is a requirement for e discussion of significant litigation, naming the prin-cipal occupations of directors, analysis of the lines of business for the last five years and the high and low sales price of the stock price of the stock.

In addition, Doremus offers a long list of suggested items that stockholders and analysts might find belpful, including advice "to keep the language simple and understandable" in a company president's letter.

The New York Times/Dec. 31, 1976

Translation of foreign currency into dollars and explanation of foreign-cur-rency transactions are one area that the checklist suggests for inclusioo. Along with this it suggests "an eco-nomic environment orientation" covering foreign markets and home markets.

For the benefit of stockholders the company might include the proce-dure for joining the company's dividend reinvestment program. If the company has a stockholder program for purchase of company products the procedure for this should also be included in the anmual report.

One warning comes from Dore-must costs of annual reports are on the rise this year. Mr. Brion says that paper costs have risen 3 to 4 per-cent over a year ago and print-ing costs are up at least 5 per-cent. "Furthermore," he adds, "the new reporting requirement means that anreporting requirement means that annual reports will run four to eight pages longer."

Growth in Radio Copy Research By PHILIP H. DOUGHERTY

Advertising

All that agency and advertiser talk about finding alternative media to high-priced television is oot just idle chatter.

Report's from the field indicate serious interest in the pictureless broad-cast medium by advertisers that all but discarded radio as soon as TV collected a mass audience.

And along with the growing interest in radio there is apparently a growing interest in radio copy research, that is pretesting advertising before it is aired.

Ted Brew, president of Radio Recall Research, Cranbury, N.J., says the growth of his business in the last six to nine months has been "incredible." . . .

Alfred Ochsner, president of the Shrader Research and Rating Service, has had a similar experience.

Both men agree with Lee Morgenlander, vice president-director of re-search at the Radio Advertising Bureau, that radio copy testing has lagged be-hind television's probably because of the differences in the dollars involved. The costs of TV commercial production and TV commercial time are so high that advertisers are willing to spend money to insure that what they put on the air is the most effective advertising they can get.

So the rise in interest in radio copy testing might indicate plans for much larger investments, or the greater so-phistication of the advertisers now con-sidering the medium.

Although a oumber of firms are prepared to do radio copy testing. Ruth Ziff, senior vice presideot and director of research and marketing services at by rescarce and marketing services at Doyle Dane Bernbach, says, "Nobody has really found a method for testing radio-although several techniques are used."

She noted that these included a "roadblocking" system of buying iden-tical time slots on a number of leading stations for the same commercial then calling consumers 24 hours later to find out who listened to those stations and how well the spots were remembered. Another method is to call consumers, play commercials to them and then call them back to check the recall. And finally, there is setting up a situation in an office or trailer, inviting consum-ers in on some pretense, exposing them to radio and then questioning them about it. about it. There are no firms using the first method, the on-air testing, according to Mr. Morgenlander. Most use varia-tions of the third system, which Mrs. Ziff considers "not natural enough." So, ber department has come up with mother variation on the up with another variation, one that uses a penny-arcade driver testing machine. The person being tested sits behind the wheel, looking at some film footage of Jersey streets and roads shot by the agency while a "car radio" pours out a matture of music and advertising messages.

"It's a situation we feel is quite realistic," said Mrs. Ziff. After an igut-minute "drive." the re spondent is questioned on a long list of irrelevant matters before the advertising ever comes up. The intent of the test is not to dis-

'Sweeps' Report Published

For the second time the Advertising Research Foundation has made public an analysis of the November "sweeps" dooe by A. C. Nielsen and Arbitron, a subsidiary of Control Data. It is during these sweeps, conducted to determine the audience share of each network during each time period that the net-works throw out the best programming available.

That's wby during November you frequently found yourself torn between two or more programs in the same time slot and in December you won-dered whether you sbould bother watching. The advertising business calls the practice "hypoing."

The A.R.F. report, dooe by Nielsen. to foundation specifications, is de-signed to help buyers of spot television who purchase local time between network programs hy giving them the average ratings and hyped ratings for each network in each half-hour segment during prime time.

El Producto from Consolidated Cigar has pulled out of television advertising, at least for the moment, and is pro-moting itself totally in print.

Newspaper advertising began last month in Sunday supplements and run of press in 15 major markets. Magazine advertising will be added January through March in Time, Newsweek, Sports Illustrated and Players, which is sort of a black versioo of Playboy.

El Producto is being promoted (through Compton Advertising) as a clgar that has benefited from an invest-ment of more than $1 million for improvement-including a oew "marble bead" construction, a rounded "smok-ing end" and a oew filler and wrapper blend.

. . . A New York banker had this additional recommendation on an appropri-ate resolution for 1977:

"The media should resolve to be more objective in their reporting on econom-ic matters," he said. "Too many members of the press, as well as some peo-ple in the educational system, don't like business, don't like profits and believe the Government is the best source to provide jobs in the economy. If unbiased economic reporting isn't stressed, how can the politicians understand what is going on in the economic world and make the right decisions?"

ARMED FORCES WILL CURB UNDESIRABLE DISCHARGES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 (AP)-The armed farces will stop giving undesirable discharges to enlisted personnel dismissed for misconduct, security reasons or other causes, the Pentagon announced today. But enlisted men and wamen ousted from the service under those conditions will still get a certificate of discharge under other than honorable conditions.
